14 FREED IN BAZZANO SLAYING

9 SUSPECTS REARRESTED AS PUBLIC ENEMIES

2 Pittsburghers Again Held; Gang Murder Charge Collapses

By WILLIAM PFARR
Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—The investigation into the murder of John Bazzano, Pittsburgh racket chief, today was back where it started 10 days ago with the discovery of Bazzano's mutilated body in Red Hook, a Brooklyn vice section.

The police were left apparently empty-handed this morning when Judge George H. Folwell, in Homicide Court, discharged 14 suspected New York racketeers, after detectives appeared before him and admitted they had no evidence against the men.

REARREST SUSPECTS

After the collapse of the case Judge Folwell suggested that the defendants be allowed to leave by the back door because of crowds at the entrance. As they started to leave a group of detectives was waiting for them and rearrested nine on general charges of disorderly conduct and being public enemies.

Two of the nine rearrested were Carlo Sparlino and Michael Russo, both of Pittsburgh.

The detectives held a faint hope that the remaining prisoners may be connected with the Bazzano murder.

VICTORY FOR LAWYER

The discharge of the men who, police said, were rounded up as they planned a party to celebrate the "bumping off" of the Pittsburgh racketeer, followed closely after a preliminary hearing had been continued until midnight by Judge Folwell. The continuance was granted at the request of the police for more time to prove their case.

STRIKERS CLOSE ILLINOIS MINES

TAYLORVILLE, Ill., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Ten thousand or more striking union coal miners stopped all mining operations in this area today and leaders announced they planned to spread over Southern Illinois and continue their campaign.

More than 2,000 miners protesting a reduced wage scale picketed Peabody Coal Company mines near Taylorville. Only a few employes appeared for work and they turned away without attempting to enter the mines.

Illinois National Guardsmen were held in readiness to move into the picketing zone, but there were few reports of violence. Fifteen hundred special deputy sheriffs did not interfere with the strikers' movements. State police were directing traffic on congested highways.

Legislature Adjourns; $12,000,000 for Aid; Sales Levy Law

With adjournment of the Legislature early today after its eight-week session, these developments occurred:

Gov. Pinchot signed the bill levying a 1 per cent retail sales tax for relief. Court tests may be made on some phases of it.

The Governor also signed the bill appropriating $100,000 for a Senate inquiry of the Public Service Commission, though still charging "whitewash."

The bill appropriating $12,000,000 in relief and establishing a distribution body also was signed.

Several hundred appointees, jobless through the Senate's refusal to confirm them, were reappointed by Pinchot.

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 19.—Before dawn this morning the Legislature moved out of Harrisburg, its special session adjourned after eight weeks of seeking a means of unemployment relief. The Senate had ratified the action of the House in passing the 1 per cent sales tax bill, the Talbot $12,000,000 relief bill, amended to create a committee consisting of the Governor, the Lieutenant Governor, the Auditor General, State Treasurer and Speaker of the House, to supervise relief sums, and both houses figured this was as much as could be accomplished.

This committee also will distribute such money as is received

FLIER SPANS SEA, TELLS OF TRIP

Mollison Makes First Solo Hop Westward Across Atlantic

Exhausted by a long battle against fog and storm, Capt. James A. Mollison, Scottish airman, this afternoon landed his tiny Puss Moth plane "Heart's Content" at Pennfield, 40 miles from St. John, N. B., completing the first solo flight from Europe to America in the history of aviation.

In the following exclusive article, he describes for International News Service the difficulties he encountered in attempting to fly direct from Ireland to New York.

By CAPT. JAMES A. MOLLISON
(Copyright, 1932, International News Service, Inc.)

PENNFIELD RIDGE, NEW BRUNSWICK, Aug. 19.—If I had a little more gasoline left, I feel sure I would have hit New York on the nose. But I went clear off the mark and had to come down, very, very tired, but glad that I have come this far safely.

I got away from Portmarnock Beach, near Dublin, yesterday morning, convinced that I should be able to reach New York without a stop as the first leg of my round-trip flight.

During the daylight hours I flew close to the surface of the water. On the first part of the flight, the weather was favorable from every point of view.

FIGHTS FOG, MIST

But off the American coast, I encountered fog and mist and had to rise 6,000 feet to escape it.

It was this fog which tired me out. It was hard work battling through a mist so blinding that I could not see.

I cannot even be certain where I made my first land-fall, but according to my computations, I believe it was about 20 miles north of Harbor Grace, Newfoundland.

At that stage of the flight, I

FOG HAMPERS 'BOUDOIR SHIP'

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—The home stretch of their race to a new women's endurance flight record was strewn with everything but roses today for Mrs. Frances Marsalis and Mrs. Louise Thaden.

Fog, overcast skies and intermittent rain were in their path as they turned 120 hours in their "flying boudoir" at noon (Pittsburgh time). The record is 122 hours, which they were to reach at 2 p. m., but they must remain aloft another hour to establish a new record.

Three refueling contacts were made this morning.

French Aviatrix Claims New Record

VILLACOUBLAY, France, Aug. 19.—(INS.)—A new woman's altitude record was claimed today by Mlle. Marise Hilz, French aviatrix, who reached the unofficial mark of 33,000 feet. The official record is 28,743 feet, established by Miss Ruth Nichols, of Rye, N. Y.

Taxpayers March on Council

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 19.—(INS.)—Five hundred taxpayers marched on the City Hall while the Council was in session today and demanded that taxes and city expenses be reduced.

Police reserves were called to maintain order as the group swarmed the Council chamber and presented a list of 10 demands.

Golden Olive Branch 'Alfalfa Bill's' Gift

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(INS.)—An olive branch dipped in gold today was in the hands of the Roosevelt campaign committee from none other than "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, erstwhile die-hard enemy of the Governor.

Democratic headquarters announced that one of its first contributions came from the fiery Oklahoman—a check for $1,600, collected by Murray himself from his friends. He contributed $100 himself.

Cows Go on Drunk, Bootlegger Sought

GREENVILLE, Mich., Aug. 19.—(INS.)—Six cows got drunk on a Greenville farm today, and the farmer, J. E. Phelps, asked the sheriff's office to find the bootlegger.

The cows, Phelps said, began to stagger after an unidentified bootlegger dumped a quantity of mash in the pasture.

COMMITTEE POST GIVEN CARROLL

Griffith Chosen State Commander; Daniels Cheered in Talk

Col. Vincent A. Carroll, an assistant district attorney of Philadelphia, was elected national executive committeeman of the Pennsylvania American Legion this afternoon, while a stirring address by Josephus Daniels, former secretary of the Navy, urging them to "get into politics" was still ringing in the veterans' ears.

Paul Griffith, of Uniontown, was chosen state commander of the legion by acclamation, caucuses off the floor of the convention apparently having smoothed out opposition and prevented an anticipated fight.

CHAPLAIN CHOSEN

The Rev. Robert K. McFetridge, of Philadelphia, was chosen state chaplain. Miss Mary Welsh, of Pittsburgh, was re-elected alternate national committeeman.

Carroll's only rival for committeeman, considered the prize plum of the state legion offices, was Charles A. Gerbert, of Tomaqua. He withdrew after the balloting started and on his motion Carroll's election was made unanimous.

These district commanders were elected: Western district, John J. (Jack) Watson, of East Liberty Post; eastern district, Otto F. Metzner, of Lancaster, and central district, George Ervin, of Waynesboro.

DANIELS CHEERED

A roar of applause greeted Daniels who declared that while he recognized the legion was not a political organization, its members should seek to serve their country in this hour of need. He said:

"The call of politics is as imperative today as was the call to arms 15 years ago. The world needs the wisdom of the men who fought, especially at this time. Open your recruiting stations and enroll your members for civic justice."

After every war, the former Wilson cabinet member said, military leaders had been enlisted to serve in political office, with the single exception of the World War.

Through failure of his secretary to notify the Legion of a change

FOUR LEGION VENDORS HELD

Four men, one on crutches and all claiming to be war veterans, and members of the American Legion, were arrested at Smithfield street and Sixth avenue shortly after noon today for selling American Legion novelties in competition with the representatives of the concessionaires.

They were arrested on complain of I. Robbins, to whose company the Legion concession committee gave the selling privileges in the downtown area.

The four, showing city vendors permits, police said, were William Swanson, 40, Frank Asher, 38, and Joseph Gralick, 39, of Philadelphia, and Gustav Voight, of Reading.

Rockefeller's Daughter Gamely Fights Death

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Astonishing her physicians with her stubborn will to live, Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick hovered on the verge of death today.

The daughter of John D. Rockefeller was waging a game battle to forestall the end which her doctors said was imminent.

Florence L. Everett, famous eastern nurse attending Mrs. McCormick, performed a nursing miracle yesterday when she restored her patient to consciousness after Mrs. McCormick had been in a coma for hours and doctors expected death momentarily.

The nurse, known as "Aunt Flo" to Mrs. McCormick and hundreds of other prominent people she has attended, looked around Mrs. McCormick's suite in the Drake Hotel. There were all of the patient's immediate family, but it was the presence of Mrs. Mathilde McCormick Oser that determined Miss Everett to take a long chance.

Mrs. Oser had rushed here from Switzerland, completing her 7,000-mile journey only to find her mother unconscious.

For an hour "Aunt Flo" administered treatment.

Finally there was a flutter, and then Mrs. McCormick came back.

Then she smiled, first at her nurse, then at Mrs. Oser, who sank to her knees beside the bed as Mrs. McCormick stretched out her hand and placed it on her daughter's head.

Garner Hitch-Hikes As Plane Grounds

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—John N. Garner, Democratic vice presidential nominee, hitch-hiked into San Antonio early today on his way to his home at Uvalde to resume a vacation interrupted by political conferences in the East.

The Speaker of the House traveled by airplane yesterday from Cincinnati to Austin, where the plane was grounded last night by a rainstorm. The Texan traveled the 80 miles between Austin and San Antonio in a motorcar with two young men whose names were not learned. The men offered the Speaker a ride.

'Delay Judgment,' Davis Pleads in Lottery

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(INS.)—United States Senator James J. Davis, of Pennsylvania, indicted with six other prominent men and the Western Union Telegraph Company for conspiracy and participation in a lottery, will appear for pleading August 30 and ask for an immediate trial.

He notified United States Attorney George Z. Medalie's office to that effect today through his attorney.

Senator Davis will attend the national convention of the Loyal Order of Moose next week, but will be in New York all the following week.

In a statement today, the Senator said:

"I am sure these charges will prove false.

"I ask the people, especially those of Pennsylvania, to withhold judgment until the trial."

Davis was charged with accepting profits of $100,000 out of $2,000,000 taken in by the Loyal Order of Moose for one of two drawings held.

According to evidence given the grand jury, Senator Davis at one time had a contract with the Moose which he sold for an estimated $600,000. Under the contract, Davis was to receive all initiation fees of new members, the grand jury was informed.

Attorney Charles J. Margiotti, special prosecutor in the Irene Shrader case, will defend Senator Davis. Margiotti represented the Senator before the Nye senatorial investigating committee and also in the alleged sugar stock deal probe.

PROBE OF HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT BALKED IN SENATE

PINCHOT, RIAL CLASH OVER P. S. C. QUIZ

Governor Not Likely To Aid Inquiry Into Utilities

By MARK SHIELDS

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 19.—Plans of Republican organization leaders to institute an investigation of the State Highway Department in the closing hours of the special session of the Legislature broke down early this morning due to a delay in printing the inquisitorial resolution.

The resolution, designed as a reprisal against the Governor for his insistence upon an investigation of the Public Service Commission, died a slow death. It was the substitute of the organization for the resolution prepared in the Senate, and never introduced, for complete investigation of the state government.

DELAY BALKS ACTION

The delay in printing of the resolution until its sponsor had gone home put the quietus on any inquiry into charges by Lewis Hines of the federal employment service that jobs in the Highway Department were awarded on a political basis, and that no employes were hired unless approved by Pinchot leaders in the counties where they were employed.

Meanwhile, the Senate investigation of public utilities and charges by the Governor that the corporations exercised an improper influence over the Public Service Commission through the payment of substantial gratuities was off in a fog of political charges and counter charges between the Governor and Senator William S. Rial, of Westmoreland County, chairman of the Investigating Committee.

Nevertheless the Governor today signed the bill appropriating $100,000 for the Senate-directed investigation. At the same time Pinchot today demanded the investigators reveal their own relations with utilities.

In statements yesterday the Governor intimated that Rial had utility clients, and Rial replied with an inference that perhaps the Governor was trying to protect some one in the investigation, an effort which the Senator said would prove unavailing.

RIAL'S PLEDGE

The upshot of the controversy was a renewed pledge by Rial to prosecute a thorough inquiry, not confined solely to means of remedying the Public Service Company law.

The Governor said:

"What the people want to know isn't what laws can be amended, but who bribed who. They want to know how much the briber paid and what he got in return. Pennsylvania is unanimous in demanding a real investigation. Press and people are united in that one desire, as they have not been in many years. Everybody wants a real investigation—everybody that is, who isn't a utility lawyer or an organization Senator. Rial is both.

"When I said in a statement printed Thursday morning that the organization leaders in the Senate were planning to whitewash the public utilities and the Public Service Commission, I knew it was true, but I never expected to have it proved so promptly and by an authority so unanswerable."

PINCHOT POETIC

The Governor was referring to Rial's statement on the floor of the Senate yesterday morning that the purpose of the inquiry should be to provide remedies in the public service company law. As he proceeded in his statement the Governor grew lyrical with a limerick which never could be classed as poetry.

It reads:

"The tractable Senator Rial
Tried to guard the utilities pile
With a slick resolution
To whitewash pollution
Excuse me if I seem to smile."

Rial, with no pretensions to poetic heights, rejoined with a statement admitting that his law office in Greensburg represented the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie, but no other utilities. He continued:

"I wish to inform the Senate the investigation is going to be made as the Senate directed. It is going to be conducted with all the power this branch of the Legislature has conferred upon it. It will be a senatorial investigation such as the Constitution ordains and not an executive affair for anyone's political aggrandizement. I feel after the Governor's statement tonight, which exceeds in violence some of his recent utterances, that Mr. Pinchot does not want to co-operate with this committee, but that he wanted to dominate it—I am wondering if Mr. Pinchot has some one he is trying to protect—I wish to serve notice on him that no one will be protected, no matter whether he is a friend of the Governor or anyone else."

TAX, RELIEF PROBE BILLS SIGNED

PINCHOT APPROVES

Gov. Pinchot signed this bill and also the sales tax bill, about which there is much controversy. Its sponsor, Representative Louis W. Hagmaier, of Aspinwall, as well as Secretary of Revenue Clyde King, in whose office the bill was drawn, and who will supervise the tax collection, say the tax will be collected only from vendors who now pay the 1 mill mercantile tax.

It is admitted, however, that the bill is broad enough to include manufacturers, and representatives of big steel and coal companies are fearful that they will be embraced in the tax collection. Predictions were made in Harrisburg last night prior to passage of the bill by the Senate that big industrial corporations might be hampered in competition with the industry of other states.

INDUSTRY IGNORED

Suggestions that the bill should be amended to specifically eliminate manufacturers, were shunted aside, as any amendments would have required the concurrence of the House, and there was a fear that the measure could not again be shoved through that body.

King intimated that a tax would be put on coal sold to domestic consumers, but not on coal sold to manufacturers. He pledged there would be no pyramiding of the sales tax, as some steel companies feared. On finished steel products, however, such as rails, steel officials feel they will certainly be classed as vendors, and thus be subject to the tax.

Predictions were rife that the bill ultimately would be tested in the courts. That test, however, cannot come until next spring, after the relief under the Talbot bill which the sales tax is assumed to provide, has been distributed. If the bill then should be held imperfect, a deficit in the state treasury will be created requiring abatements unless they are restored by the Legislature in the next regular session.

KING QUERIED

Senator Andrew J. Sordoni, Luzerne County, asked King to answer the following hypothetical question:

"The Carnegie Steel Company sells bars to the McKeesport Tin Plate Company, they in turn selling tin plate to the Wilkes-Barre Can Company. The Wilkes-Barre Can Company in turn sells the completed cans to the X Y Z Oil Company. The oil company fills the can with oil and sells it to the Blank Store, which in turn sells it to the consumer. Would there be a tax on each of the companies mentioned, or would the tax apply only when the can is at last sold to the consumer, namely the man who buys the can and oil for his own use?"

King replied, and the reply was read by Sordoni to the Senate:

"In the opinion of the Revenue Department the tax to which you refer would be paid only when the can is sold to the last consumer and will be paid by the vendor who sells it to the consumer."

On excellent authority it is known this interpretation is not accepted by others within the administrative circle, it being held that a tax would also be imposed upon the finished product, the can, before it is sold to the oil company.

TEST LOOMS

It is the fear of those who supported the bill that some small vendor, contending he should not pay the tax, when the manufacturer escapes, will take the case to the courts and demand a ruling. Should that ruling be adverse to big manufacturers, they will challenge the constitutionality of the entire bill on the theory that its exemption of farmers who sell their own products constitutes class legislation.

There is also an exemption of those who "sell for resale." One steel man pointed out last night that in a million-dollar order to Westinghouse, for example, nine-tenths of the order might be for manufacture, of Westinghouse products, eliminating the tax on that amount of steel. But if one-tenth of the order went to Westinghouse for repairs in its plant, that amount would be taxed.

MANY RENAMED TO STATE POSTS

HARRISBURG, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Gov. Gifford Pinchot today reappointed several hundred state officials, including two public service commissioners and the secretary of welfare. The Senate failed to act on their nominations which automatically let them out of office.

Between the time of adjournment and the reappointment of commissioners Frederick Gruenberg, Philadelphia, and George W. Woodruff, Berwyn, the commission could take no official action for lack of a quorum. Three vacancies still remain in the commission membership of seven.

Mrs. Alice Liveright, Philadelphia, was reappointed secretary of welfare.

The aeronautics commission was not reappointed.

Others not renamed were:

The Chicago Centennial Anniversary Commission.

Mrs. Clara M. Tibbins, Beech Creek; Mrs. Sarah A. Booth, East Stroudsburg, and Mrs. Emma Schaibly, Hawley, trustees of mothers' assistance funds.

Pollard to Ponder Relief on Vacation

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Gov. John Garland Pollard will leave tomorrow for White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., for a two-week vacation, but will take his work with him.

The Governor, who has devoted the past two weeks to a study of relief measures which may be taken in Virginia under the federal act, said he planned to complete this phase of his work while at the resort. His secretary, Miss Voilet McDougall, will accompany him.

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Aug. 19.—Accused of robbing the Polish Falcon Club here, five Negroes were arrested in the basement of a nearby home early today, police reported. A radio, candy and cigars valued at $250 were recovered.

TAX PAYMENT BILL PASSED

HARRISBURG, Aug. 19.—The Legislature passed finally early this morning a bill permitting the payment of delinquent taxes in Allegheny County on the instalment plan. Payments may be made in amounts of 10 per cent of the delinquency, with interest abated on all paid instalments.

The Senate amended the bill, introduced in the House by Rep. Max Spann, to eliminate Philadelphia. All other governmental units are included, and it is predicted Gov. Pinchot will sign it.

WALKER FIGHTS SHERWOOD CHARGES

Records Fail to Link Mayor, Fugitive, Counsel Says

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 19.—John J. Curtin, chief counsel for Mayor James J. Walker, resumed his lengthy argument for the dismissal of Samuel Seabury's removal charges when Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt reconvened the public hearing on the Walker case here this afternoon.

Earlier in the day, attorneys appeared in Supreme Court before Justice Ellis J. Staley in connection with two separate writs, both seeking to restrain the Governor from acting on the question of Walker's removal.

COURT APPEAL

First, Curtin apppeared before Justice Staley on the petition of Mayor Walker to restrain the Governor from removing him, and was granted a delay until Monday to argue his contentions.

Then Attorney Sidney Levine, representing George Donnelly, a home rule advocate of New York, argued before Justice Staley on a court order he had obtained temporarily restraining the Governor from rendering a decision. After hearing Levine's argument, Justice Staley reserved decision.

Paul Block, the newspaper publisher who has figured prominently in the Seabury testimony, was a spectator at the hearing before Gov. Roosevelt. It had been testified that Block opened a joint brokerage account with Walker and made $246,000 for his friend, the Mayor, during the stock market boom of 1927.

SHERWOOD CHARGES

Curtin immediately launched into a defense of Mayor Walker against "count No. 10" of the 15 charges filed with the Governor by Seabury. In this charge, Seabury alleged that the Mayor caused nearly $1,000,000 to be deposited, including about $700,000 in cash, by Russell T. Sherwood, and failed to give a satisfactory explanation of the source of this money. Seabury alleges Sherwood was the Mayor's financial agent. Walker denies this. Curtin said:

"There is nothing in the record that would cast suspicion on Mayor Walker in connection with Sherwood's accounts."

The baggage car, two mail cars, a passenger coach and four Pullmans left the track but did not turn over. Railroad officials said none of the passengers was injured.

They blamed spread rails for the derailment.

Glynn, as a deputy sheriff, shot and killed Webel on August 2, when the latter tried to escape after being taken in custody for failure to pay a support order issued in behalf of his wife and infant child.

He had been previously arraigned on a police complaint and released in $10,000 bail. Magistrate Folwell in Brooklyn Homicide Court today ordered Glynn to await the drawing up of the new complaint by Webel, Sr., and Murray.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—The weekly news service of the American Federation of Labor said today President Hoover had erred in stating in his acceptance speech that he had obtained an agreement from business and labor leaders in 1929 to "uphold wages until the cost of living was adjusted. The Federation said:

"There is nothing in this 1929 agreement indicating that the maintenance of wages was to be predicated on the cost of living."

The pronouncement of Curtis was hailed with satisfaction by the organized dry leaders who have braved the wrath of their followers by giving support to President Hoover in the campaign.

STRADDLE CHARGED

Democratic leaders rushed forward with the declaration that the Vice President has proved their contention that the Republican party is attempting to run half dry, half wet.

In Republican circles the statement was received with mixed feeling. Republican leaders who regard President Hoover's liquor stand as an aid in their drive to capture the wet East were dismayed. The leaders who are looking for votes in the supposedly dry West and South were happy.

The situation created by the varying statements of President Hoover and Vice President Curtis—both going beyond the platform adopted by the Republicans at Chicago—is said to be unprecedented in a national campaign.

DRIVE IN WEST

The situation presaged a desperate drive by the Republicans to capture the West, which already had been subordinated by them in importance to the East during the campaign.

Vice President Curtis will be sent into almost every nook and corner of the country West of the Mississippi River in an effort to capture votes for the Hoover-Curtis ticket.

Farley Criticizes Curtis Broadcast

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(INS.)—The acceptance speech of Vice President Curtis containing a dry stand on prohibition was not broadcast to the radio listeners of Chicago and New York, chief centers of wet sentiment. A coast-to-coast network of 48 other stations carried the speech. The incident called forth pungent criticism from James Farley, Democratic national chairman.

HOOVER TO URGE 5-DAY WEEK

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(INS.)—Immediate adoption of the five-day week in American industry to spread employment will be urged upon business leaders of the nation by President Hoover at the industrial conference here next Friday.

With mechanical development throwing hundreds of thousands of laborers out of work each year, the President believes shorter working hours are essential to the ultimate solution of the unemployment problem.

He has already paved the way for adoption of the five-day week in government departments, and hopes to see it adopted by industry generally.

The President also plans to request business leaders to join with him in working out a solution of the problem of readjusting wages along with shorter hours to maintain the purchasing power of the workingman.

Hoover, Roosevelt Stunt Clash Set by Fair

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 19.—(INS.)—President Hoover and Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt are going to crash head-on at the Iowa State Fair, August 27.

Their names will be appended to railroad locomotives figuring in a deliberate wreck, it was announced today. The engines will rush at each other on a track extending 3,200 feet across the fair grounds.

The first train wreck at the state fair was in 1896. One engine was named Bryan and the other McKinley. "McKinley" was almost demolished, but "Bryan" remained upright, its whistle blowing. This was interpreted as a good sign for Bryan's chances in the campaign.

Wealthy Widow Ignores Five Children in Will

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Nicholas Hubinger's five children, court records disclosed today, are left no share of her $750,000 estate, the bulk of which she willed to Matthew A. Daly, her late husband's real estate manager.

Date for a Probate Court hearing on admission of the will, drawn in 1924 by the widow of the starch manufacturer, has not been set. Negotiations were reported under way between the children and Daly looking to a compromise to avoid a court contest.

Daly acted as a business agent for Mrs. Hubinger for some time after the death of her husband, whose estate was estimated at $2,000,000. That is to be distributed among the children now, in accordance with Hubinger's will.

Hubinger and his brother, Joseph E. Hubinger, founded their fortune by selling starch from house to house and then established factories here and at Keokuk, Iowa.

2 CHILDREN SHOT IN BROOKLYN GANGS' STREET WAR

GIRLS TRAPPED IN GUNMEN'S CROSS-FIRE

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Two small children writhed in pain today, victims of gangster bullets aimed at foes who temporarily escaped underworld revenge and scattered a laughing group of children playing on the street.

Caught in the gun duel between the would-be assassins and the attacked, Rose Faylis, 11, and her sister, Frieda, 3, playing near their Brooklyn home, while their parents watched them from the window, were wounded by bullets. Neither is in a serious condition.

An hour after the battle, which resembled last year's "baby massacre" in Manhattan in which a 5-year-old boy was slain, Cosmo Costanano, 32, a Brooklyn baker, was killed while standing on the street near his home by a fusillade from an automobile.

The death car contained four men, as did the one which injured the two girls.

The children were playing a game of "numbers," requiring the winner, who was to be rewarded with an ice cream cone, to note correctly 10 automobile license numbers as the cars passed.

But none of the youngsters apparently noted the license number of a car which slowed down near them, and from which guns barked at three men crouching behind a stoop.

The men on the sidewalk returned the fire.

AUTO FIRE KILLS FAMILY OF 5

MIDLAND, Mich., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—A father and mother and their four children were burned fatally early today in their automobile which caught fire after colliding with another car.

The victims were Mr. and Mrs. George Messer, of Thompsonville, Mich., and their children, Edward, 12; Forest, 10; Stella, 6, and Mary, 4. Three of the children died in the burning car before rescuers could reach them. The others died in hospitals later.

A seventh occupant of the car, Harry Crane, of Birmingham, Mich., brother-in-law of the father, was critically burned and was not expected to recover.

HOOVER GREETS GIRL FLIER IN WHITE HOUSE

Helen Richey Watches President Decorate Post and Gatty

Miss Helen Richey, 22-year-old McKeesport girl, is in Washington to take part in the Cord Cup air race which leaves Washington Sunday and finishes August 27 as the opening feature of the National Races at Cleveland. Until the end of the races she will write daily for the Sun-Telegraph.

By HELEN RICHEY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—As though planned for my special benefit, my first visit to the White House was to witness the awarding of the Distinguished Flying Cross to Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, round-the-world fliers.

This impressive ceremony was originally planned for the East Lawn, but due to a pelting rain, took place on the veranda of the Executive Building. Senator Bingham, acting as host, escorted us and we assembled before a barrage of moving picture cameras.

POST, GATTY DECORATED

Post and Gatty, by the way, are very interesting in their extreme modesty over their achievement. To my mind, theirs is the most significant aeronautical feat to date. When everything was in readiness, with Post and Gatty in the center of the group, a White House attache made way for the President. This was done so quietly that before I realized it I was watching President Hoover confer this great honor on these boys who so richly deserved it. After this ceremony, we retired to the reception room to pay our respects.

FLIERS' LUNCHEON

We then left to attend a luncheon given by the National Aeronautics Association at the Mayflower Hotel. As we drove through the spacious grounds of the executive mansion, I was impressed with the democratic atmosphere that prevailed.

As we drove down the avenue I could not help but compare the silent welcome of the open gates to the President's home to the autocracy of other nations.

It seems that our capital city greets us from every angle with hospitality and the education of every American is never complete without a visit to Washington.

'CHUBBIE' KEEPS ALOOF FROM LANCASTER

Breach in Romance of Trial Principals Unpatched

By LARRY SMITS
International News Service.

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 19.—With the memory of a grueling trial dimming with succeeding hours of relaxation in luxurious tropical surroundings, Capt. William N. Lancaster and Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller, the "Chubbie" he loved and lost, gave no indication today of patching up the romance which began with their Australian flight five years ago.

Lancaster is a guest of the Miami Shores home of James M. Carson, the attorney whose skill in presentation of facts gained the British flier's acquittal on the charge that he killed Haden Clarke in vengeful jealousy. Mrs. Keith-Miller was resting in the Miami Beach home of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Lathero, 10 miles away. Lathero was associated with Carson in the successful defense of Lancaster.

STILL FRIENDS

All that could be said with certainty of the association which joined the fortunes and misfortunes of the fair of famous fliers was that they remained staunch friends. Lancaster said:

"I am eternally grateful to Mrs. Keith-Miller for her dauntless courage on the witness stand in my behalf. From the first of our acquaintance I admired her bravery in adversity and in moments of danger which most men could not have met. That courage was even more evident on the witness stand, and was an important factor in proving my innocence."

Lancaster has a wife in London, from whom he is separated, but not divorced. As was brought out in the trial, she is a Catholic and by the tenets of her faith, is forbidden from seeking divorce. They have two children.

Mrs. Keith-Miller, on the other hand, declared from the witness stand that for two years she had not been in love with Lancaster, in the sense that she loved Haden Clarke, the young ghost writer to whom she was engaged when he met his death at her home the night of April 20, with a bullet through his brain. She declared:

"I enjoy Bill's company, but I am not thrilled with his presence, as a woman is by the man she loves."

DEPORTATION HELD UP

A deportation warrant against Lancaster, which was taken out several weeks ago, has not been served, and the question of deportation, it was indicated, was in indefinite abeyance, as far as Lancaster is concerned.

Mrs. Keith-Miller is free on $1,000 bond on a deportation warrant, and the secret hearing on which the Department of Labor at Washington will determine her fitness to remain in this country will be held Monday behind closed doors.

AIMEE TEMPLE CASH HUNTED

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—A check of the financing of the Angelus Temple commissary between January and July, 1932, had been ordered today by W. F. Rugg, temple investigator, who said auditors' reports showed several thousand dollars in cash gifts were missing.

Rugg was appointed investigator by Harriet Jordan, assistant temple manager, in the absence of David L. Hutton, business manager, and his wife, Aimee Semple McPherson, who are on vacation in San Francisco.

The investigator said auditors found only $50 in cash donations to the commissary had been given the temple treasury between January and July. He said Roy Watkins, deposed commissary manager, was in charge during those months.

New York Gangster Again Asks Parole

OSSINING, N. Y., Aug. 19.—(INS.)—Ownie Madden, sentenced in 1915 to serve from 10 to 20 years on a manslaughter charge, paroled in 1923 for good conduct and brought back to prison on July 6 for a violation of his parole, again applied for his freedom yesterday before the State Parole Board.

The reputed New York gang leader will not know his fate for another month when the next meeting of the board will be held. Reports that many prominent citizens had written to the board on Madden's behalf were current.

High pressure is now dominating the weather over most of the interior of the country. It is centered over the upper Mississippi Valley states. The low that caused the showers over this section yesterday is now in the far Northwest, and the disturbance that was centered over Eastern Texas is advancing eastward over the Gulf Coast. Showers were general yesterday over the Atlantic and Gulf states, and there were scattered light showers over the Rocky Mountain states. It is cooler than yesterday morning, over practically all of the eastern half of the country, while in the West temperatures are rising again. There were no high maximum temperatures yesterday except in the far Southwest.

STRIKE ENDED ON POSTOFFICE

An agreement has been reached to end the strike of the hoisting engineers which has delayed construction on Pittsburgh's new $8,000,000 postoffice building for the last month.

Due to delays in gathering crews and the nearness to the week-end, work is not expected to start full blast before Monday.

The settlement was made last night at a meeting at the William Penn Hotel attended by federal labor mediators and representatives of workmen and employers.

It was agreed that the Pittsburgh Gravel Company will deliver gravel by barge to a float rented by the Aronberg-Fried Company, general contractors, and manned by union hoisting engineers. The plant of the Pittsburgh Gravel Company has not been unionized.

False Mrs. Sherwood Excites New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—The name "Mrs. R. T. Sherwood, missing witness in the Hofstadter legislative committee inquiry into the New York City administration.

She said she is the wife of Robert T. Silverman, of New York, and writes under the name of Rose T. Sherwood.

OCEAN SPANNED BY MOLLISON

thought surely I could make New York today.

I struck a course that I believed was taking me straight down the Newfoundland coast, but the fog stayed with me and I went clear off the course.

The next thing I knew I was over Halifax, Nova Scotia. I had not planned to fly there and I circled the city to make sure of my whereabouts. Then once again I set a course that I thought would take me southward to New York.

BATTLES FATIGUE

Through fog and mist I flew until at last I became so tired I thought I could continue on no longer. So I turned back to look for a suitable lnding plce nd the next thing I knew I was over St. John, New Brunswick.

The coast nearby was too rocky for a safe landing. I was about done in, and my gasoline supply was becoming depleted, I had to give up all hope of reaching New York today, so I turned back inland to look for a place to come down.

It took an hour to find one. At last I spotted an open field at Pennfield Ridge, and I brought the plane down in an easy landing right near the home of my present host, Mr. Raymond Hawkins.

I was stiff and tired when I climbed out of the machine, but happy to be alive and pleased to find that my ship was all right. There was still some gasoline in the tank. I am sure that if I had a few gallons more, I would have kept myself awake and continued.

MESSAGE TO WIFE

So far as I am concerned, I am tired, and like everyone else almost totally deaf after sitting behind a roaring engine for 30 hours.

I would be happy if you would send a message to my wife. (Mrs. Mollison is the former Amy Johnson, famous British aviatrix).

Tell her I am glad I have justified her confidence in me and that I shall be in New York tomorrow.

In the meantime, I need a rest. I plan to go in to St. John this afternoon and put up for the night at the Admiral Beatty Hotel. I shall leave my plane here and come back for it tomorrow morning. I should be at Roosevelt Field sometime early tomorrow afternoon.

The way I feel now, I think I shall take a really good rest before I fly back to Ireland. I shall certainly start in a week's time, but at present I feel a little too tired.

But when I do go back, it will be in my little plane, and I'm sure it will be easier than the westward journey.

PICCARD TO TRY CANADA FLIGHT

DESENZANO, Italy, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Prof. Auguste Piccard rested today after his record-breaking 10-mile ascent into the stratosphere yesterday, announced he would begin immediately to prepare for a third ascent from the northwest shore of Hudson Bay, in Canada.

Prof. Piccard also prepared to read what to him is the real story of the remarkable flight—the story of the scientific instruments he carried with him.

Pending the examination of the instruments, he refused to say more than that he had reached a height of nearly 55,000 feet and encountered temperatures which were 5 degrees below zero Fahrenheit inside the spherical aluminum goldola and 67 degrees below on the outside.

The instruments, as well as the gondola itself, were taken last night from Cavallaro di Monzanrano, where he landed, to the Italian aviation school here.

Sewickley Boy Safe After Night in Wilds

Lost in the Northern Ontario forests while assisting in the search for a 13-year-old girl, Evan Rose, eldest son of Attorney Don Rose, of Sewickley, was back in his camp at Ahmic Harbor, Ontario, today none-the-worse from his experience, according to Associated Press dispatches to Pittsburgh.

Rose strayed away from the search party and lost his bearings. It was near sundown and in the gathering dusk he stumbled into a swamp. His matches were useless after the "ducking" and he spent the night packing back and forth along a path to keep warm. The youth said:

"Finally I came out at Little Deer Lake and followed along the shore until I came to a farm. There were about 60 men there ready to start out looking for me."

During the search for the lost girl, who also found her own way back to safety yesterday, Dr. Howard Kelly, of Baltimore, wheeled back and forth in an airplane assisting those on the ground.

COX UNMOVED BY HARVEY BOLT

Undismayed by the desertion of the Liberty Party, Father James R. Cox, presidential nominee of the Jobless Party, was back in Pittsburgh today, preparing for his campaign.

A week of rest and preparation lies between today and the start of a series of aerial speaking trips calculated to take him into every state in the Union.

RETURNS BY AIR

Father Cox returned to Pittsburgh by air last night, following his convention in St. Louis, marked by desertion of the Liberty Party under "Coin" Harvey, octogenarian political leader.

Undismayed, Father Cox said:

"Desertion of Harvey was just another sign of religious prejudice. I'm glad it came out so quickly.

"I valued Harvey's ideas highly—more than I valued Harvey. But I shall not miss his support. He had very few followers—only a handful attended the convention.

"If I went to the polls tomorrow, I believe I'd poll about 100,000 votes. But, by November, there may be a change."

GAINS WEIGHT

Looking calmly around at reporters gathered to hear his impressions, the bespectacled priest of Old St. Patrick's Church in the Strip, said:

"Have I lost weight? I should say not. I gained five pounds in spite of the Missouri mosquitoes. I must weigh about 135, now."

Father Cox said the reason for the comparatively small delegation at his convention was that he only took with him those of his followers who had $25 in cash and a tank full of gasoline. He concluded:

"I could have had all my boys from Coxtown, Shantytown, my breadline—but I didn't want anyone stranded."

MILLS REVEALS HUGE LOANS TO BANKS, RAILS

International News Service.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 19. — The Reconstruction Finance Corporation loaned nearly $1,000,000,000 to banks and railroads during its first six months of operation, Secretary of the Treasury Mills revealed today.

Speaking at commencement exercises of the Bryant-Stratton Business College, Mills described the corporation as "the most powerful agency ever devised to meet the greatest financial crisis that ever confronted the nation."

From February 2 to July 31, inclusive, he stated, the corporation authorized loans of $1,219,000,000.

The lion's share of this total went to 4,190 banks and trust companies, which obtained loan commitments of $736,000,000.

RAILS GET MILLIONS

Next in line came 43 railroads, with authorization of $230,000,000.

Other groups receiving pledges of aid from the corporation included: Sixty mortgage loan companies, $81,000,000; 541 building and loan associations, $68,000,000; 73 insurance companies, $67,000,000; 10 agricultural credit corporations, $8,000,000; three credit unions, $405,000, and five joint stock loan banks, "nearly $1,500,000."

On July 30, $976,000,000 actually had been disbursed and $110,000,000 of this amount had been repaid.

The Treasury head ignored the early phase of the depression, but elaborated on the "second phase," which he insisted had its beginning in the collapse of Austrian financial houses.

From Austria, he asserted, this new economic upheaval spread to Germany and later girdled the globe.

UPHOLDS POLICY

Mills defended the Reconstruction Finance body against charges that it has aided rich and powerful interests but neglected the welfare of the masses. He declared:

"The first important fact to be noted is that practically all the institutions authorized to borrow from the corporation are either subject to regulation or supervision by the government.

"In the second place, all may fairly be said to be closely related to the public interest.

"In the third place, they are distinctly service institutions devoted to the essential financial needs of practically our entire population, and, finally, the group is sufficiently inclusive to reach nearly all our people."

HOME OWNERS TO BENEFIT BY LOAN BANK

A new avenue of credit for the home owners of the Pittsburgh district will be established between October 15 and November 1, when the machinery of the new Federal Home Loan Bank system will be set in motion, according to William E. Best, of Pittsburgh, one of the five directors of the Home Loan Bank.

Building and loan associations, savings banks, fire insurance companies and life insurance companies will have the opportunity to borrow cash from the home loan bank and pledge mortgages as security. Building and loan of this state were given new powers in this respect at the special session of the Legislature.

DISTRICTS NOT FIXED

Banking districts have not yet been laid out, but already cities have come forward with subscription lists showing what they will contribute if a branch is located within their limits.

Best, back from Washington, said:

"We intend to work as rapidly as possible. There will be no long hearings at Washington."

LOAN BODIES ACTIVE

Asked about Pittsburgh's chance for a branch bank, Best said it depended on the attitude of the financial institutions here. He pointed out the building and loan associations of Allegheny County have already bestirred themselves and have a meeting scheduled for tonight, but that few signs of activity have yet been shown by the savings banks, and the fire and life insurance companies.

The law provides the lending institutions must subscribe to the branch bank at least one per cent of the unpaid principal of their home mortgage loans.

Great public interest has been shown in the new system, Best declared. Thousands of letters, many telling pathetic stories of foreclosures, have been received, he stated.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Aug. 19.—A thorough inspection of the hull of the U. S. S. Arrangements for a naval board of inquiry to place responsibility for the mishap were started.

The Saratoga was at its regular anchorage in battleship row here after being convoyed from Sunset Beach by three navy tugs which had pulled her from the sand bar at high tide last night.

With a crew of 1,700 officers and men and carrying 80 planes, the Saratoga apparently suffered no damage when she lay stranded for more than four hours a mile off shore. However, if the divers report evidence of strain on the hull, the ship will be sent to the United States Navy Yard at Bremerton, Wash., for further inspection.

EMPIRE PARLEY NEAR END

OTTAWA, Ontario, Aug. 19.—(INS.)—A plenary session called for 10 a. m. tomorrow will wind up the 1932 British imperial economic conference, according to officials.

The session will review treaties between the United Kingdom and other countries of the British commonwealth, the final details of which are now being written.

Existing Russian agreements with Great Britain, especially as affecting lumber, held up both the United Kingdom-Canada pact and the Australia-United Kingdom understanding until late yesterday. At a meeting of the Canadian cabinet yesterday afternoon the final offer of the United Kingdom with regard to lumber was placed before his ministry by Premier R. B. Bennett and accepted.

Hibernian Ladies To Hold Luncheon

LOWER WATER RATES ASKED

East McKeesport's borough council is to hold a special meeting tonight to discuss the installation of a complete water meter system and to discuss a fight for reduced water rates.

Audley and W. T. Pierce, who recently bought the East McKeesport Water Company from receivers, will present a new rate schedule before the Public Service Commission on August 24. They will also apply at that time for a certificate of convenience to operate as a water company.

The present water rates are $3.75 for service charge, 55 cents for the first 8,000 gallons of water and 40 cents for the next 8,000 gallons.

Cajigal Resigns as Mexico City Mayor

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Vincente Estrada Cajigal, chief of the federal district government, which is equivalent to being Mayor of Mexico City, resigned last night, explaining that he felt he lacked the confidence of President Ortiz Rubio, who appointed him last January.

Fight to Bring Up 7 Children in Pioneer Style

WATERLOO, Ia., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. Norman Frank Grim believe they have the right to raise their children in pioneer style and are going to court to prove it.

The state, in an action filed Thursday in Municipal Court, declared the seven Grim children, ranging in age from three months to nine years, should be removed from the covered wagon where the family is living and placed in custody of relatives or an institution.

Defense attorneys said they had ample precedent to show the court in the names of many of the country's most important men so reared.

Coulter Funeral Set for Tomorrow

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—The body of Col. Henry W. Coulter, 56, soldier and big game hunter, arrived at his estate last night from Philadelphia.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the first Presbyterian Church with the Rev. H. S. Strock officiating. Burial will be in St. Clair Cemetery.

PHILA. BOMBING LAID TO RACKET

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 19.—(INS.)—A bomb was set off at Ninth and Carpenter streets, South Philadelphia, early today, filling the streets with debris and rocking the entire block. Police were searching through a score of stores and business establishments in quest of possible victims. A time bomb caused the havoc, it was said.

Police reserves roped off the section and started work clearing the wreckage and shattered glass from the streets.

Although there were no eyewitnesses to the bombing, detectives learned that the infernal machine had been planted in front of the poultry market of Angelo Cannazo. The latter told officials he had been threatened on three occasions when he failed to comply with the demands of extortionists that he pay $1,500 as the price of safety.

Farmer Found Dead In Own Corn Field

GREENVILLE, Pa., Aug. 19.—John S. Jacobs, 65, farmer, of near Milledgeville, was found dead today in a corn field. Heart trouble was given as the cause.

EGAN WITNESS ADMITS KILLING

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Verne Doran ended, in tears, his story of the slaying of a middle aged widow for which Frank J. Egan, former San Francisco public defender, and Albert Tinnin, ex-convict, are on trial.

But as he left the stand yesterday Doran, the state's star witness, said:

"I have told the truth and that is what my mother wanted me to do."

Doran, former chauffeur for Egan, was granted a separate trial on charges of slaying Mrs. Jessie Scott Hughes if he would testify for the prosecution against Egan and Tinnin. Doran said he and Tinnin killed the widow at the behest of Egan who, the state contends, was the beneficiary of the life insurance policies of the widow, his client and friend.

Roy Smeck, Ukulele Wizard, With Shilkret; Pilar Arcas Guest of Leo Reisman

Roy (Wizard) Smeck, vaudeville, screen and radio star, who plays every string instrument from a Spanish guitar to an octachorda, demstrates his prowess when he appears as guest artist on Nat Shilkret's Week-end Hour over WJAS tonight from 9 to 9:30. His latest achievement is the imitation, on the uke, of Bill Robinson's famous tap dance on the stairs. In addition to Smeck's display of tricks, Shilkret's novelty orchestra and his vocal ensemble, with the male quartet and Thelma Kessler, soprano, are heard in a group of semi-classical and popular selections.

Roy Smeck

Excerpts from "Love at First Fight'" an original nine-scene musical comedy by Bill Bales and Sidney J. Lindenberg, of the Irene Kaufmann Settlement, to be presented soon by a cast of 175 children of the Settlement, comprise the quarter-hour "Pittsburgh Today" on KQV tonight at 8 o'clock. The broadcast was prepared by Ruth Grafman.

Program Pointers

Juliette Lippe, foremost soprano with the Royal Opera, London, during the spring of 1932, presents a classical concert over an NBC-WEAF network, including WCAE, tonight at 10:30 o'clock. Rosario Bourdon, known to millions of radio listeners as a conductor and composer, turns back a page from the past when he makes his air debut as a 'cello soloist tonight at 8 on WCAE with Countess Olga Albani and the Cavaliers Quartet. This is the first time Bourdon, who toured Europe as a child prodigy with his 'cello, has given a public performance on that instrument in 17 years.

Miss Lippe

Pilar Arcos, specialist in Spanish music, is guest soloist with Leo Reisman and his orchestra on WCAE at 9:30.

Switching from Saturday to Friday nights, the First Nighter program inaugurates its new schedule—Friday at 9 p. m.—with a thrilling mystery drama, "Black Spider," on KDKA tonight.

Edna Kellogg's interpretation of "Waltz Song," from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," and a special arrangement of "The Birth of the Blues," by Roy Shield's orchestra with a quartet, are highlights on KDKA at 9:30.

Dick and Bob, a new harmony team which made its bow to the KQV audience Wednesday, is heard in another of a series of three-a-week programs today at 5:30. Included on the program is a special arrangement of the plaintive hit, "When Nobody Else Is Around."

Fan Fare

Harriet Lee is searching for a new title for her program with the Three Leaders and is asking the radio audience for suggestions . . . Gene Austin claims that he has sent out more than 2,000,000 photos of himself in answer to requests from fans . . . One of Jane Froman's fans has written two songs and sent them to her . . . Josef Koestner, unable to depend on the cab service where he is spending the summer, has bought a bicycle and can be seen pedaling between his home and the railroad station twice each day . . . George Frame Brown, author of Thompkins Corners, has written a three-act play under that title which will be presented by the original NBC cast in a transcontinental tour this fall.

Miss Lee

Ulita Torgerson was once invited to retire from a motion picture set because the star, the late Jeanne Eagels, complained she looked too much like her.

One of Ralph Kirbery's ambitions is to join an expedition of scientists and explore pre-historic villages in Asia.

In 1925, Phillips Lord made a trip across the country in an old battered flivver—a young college graduate out to see a bit of the country. The next time, less than five years later, that he set out on an extended tour, it was at the head of his own Seth Parker company.

William Beebe, the noted scientist, will take a microphone a half mile below the surface of the sea with him early next month and tell the radio listeners what he sees and experiences on the ocean's floor in a special diving bell.

* * *

Question Box

Who is Inchy Spencer on the Stebbins Boys programs? Does Phillips Lord have any children? How old is Rudy Vallee?

A Listener, Pittsburgh.

Inchy Spencer is Robert Strauss. Lord has two children, Jean, 4, and Patricia, 2. Vallee is 31.

Long's Sports Review On WCAE

James J. Long, sports columnist of the Sun-Telegraph, gives a complete resume of news in the world of sports during his weekly talk on WCAE tonight at 7 o'clock.

Charlotte Shallenberger, soprano, and Richard Koch, baritone, are starred with Pat Haley, master of ceremonies, and the WCAE Orchestra during the Sun-Telegraph Nite Club of the Air tonight at 11.

Louis L. Kaufman, Globe-Trotter of the Sun-Telegraph and Hearst Metrotone News, goes on the air at 9:05 a. m., 12:15 p. m., 2:30 p. m. and 6:30 p. m. with the latest news flashes.

'HECKLERS' IRK RUDY VALLEE

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Rudy Vallee, radio "crooner," demonstrated to a Fernbrook Park dance hall audience that when "heckled" he is willing to indulge in fisticuffs.

During a dance music program, a number of young men gathered around the platform and began heckling so much that Rudy dropped his baton and made his way to where the "hecklers" stood.

Legion Parade Broadcast Tomorrow

The colorful convention parade of the American Legion of Pennsylvania, which will bring to a close the state conclave which opened in Pittsburgh yesterday and in which more than 15,000 legionnaires and members of the auxiliary will participate, will be broadcast by WCAE from three separate points, and WWSW, tomorrow afternoon beginning at 2 o'clock.

WCAE microphones will pick up the martial music of the parade from the starting point, the Fifth Avenue High School, from the marquee of a downtown store at Sixth avenue and Smithfield street, and at the reviewing stand, with complete eye-witness accounts of the spectacle by Ford Miller, Lieut. James Hays and Leland Becraft.

WCAE, the only station to broadcast from the reviewing stand, will bring prominent state, city and Legion officials to the microphone intermittently for brief comments.

More than 200 groups, resplendent in uniform, will march in the parade, requiring about six hours to pass a given point.

All previously scheduled programs have been canceled on WCAE and WWSW to bring a verbal picture to stay-at-home parade enthusiasts tomorrow. Today and tomorrow morning all programs listed on WCAE are subject to change or cancellation for special broadcasts of sessions.

Gen. Smedley D. Butler, former Marine Corps commander, is expected to arrive in Pittsburgh in time to speak at the final session tomorrow morning at 1 o'clock.

Oklahoma Sends 2 to Electric Chair

McALESTER, Okla., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—A white man and a Negro, convicted murderers, were put to death in the electric chair at the Oklahoma Penitentiary here early today. I. J. Alder, the white man, was convicted of slaying his brother-in-law and wife. The Negro, Fillmore Davis, was sentenced for killing Gus Jarvis, a Blaine County under-sheriff.

'Lightning' Editor Strikes Twice, Heads Raids

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—The Rev. Elmer Williams, editor of Lightning lived up to his publication's name by striking twice, but not in the same place.

After getting a pocketful of John Doe warrants he went to suburban Blue Island, seized 40 slot machines and then hopped onto a meat wagon and went to other suburbs where he raided several alleged beer stores.

He was accompanied by officers.

ATOM-BREAKING PERIL DOUBTED

BERLIN, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Smashing of the atoms of lead, second heaviest metal, with the new high power German X-ray tube was described today by two young scientists, Arno Brasch and Fritz Lange, who said they believe they are close to solution of the long-sought secret of the constitution of matter itself.

Their giant-power tube, smashing atoms by the millions, disposes of the myths that "unlocking the energy of the atom" might some day produce explosive energy capable of destroying the world, they said, explaining:

"In its present status, unlocking the energy of the atom reveals only doubtful utilitarian value. Construction of new elements such as gold is undoubtedly possible, but it would cost $1,200,000 worth of electrical current alone to make the gold possible."

They will soon start experimenting with the rays of the new tube again to determine their effectiveness against cancer.

CONVICT WAITS INQUEST IN KILLING

Carl Jackson, 30, a Negro, serving a life term for murder in the Western Penitentiary today was in solitary confinement awaiting a Coroner's inquest into the alleged slaying of Sam Culmore, 36, another Negro inmate yesterday.

Culmore died in the prison hospital several hours after he had been struck on the head with a piece of pipe by Jackson in the yard of the penitentiary, according to homicide detectives. Culmore suffered a fractured skull.

Several other inmates were in the yard at the time of the alleged attack, but they told prison officials they did not witness it. The slaying was believed the culmination of a grudge between the two prisoners.

Culmore, sentenced from Allegheny County, last June 24, was serving a 10-to-20-year term for robbery, officials said.

The pipe was obtained from a new line which is being laid from a well to the prison boiler house.

'THIRD DEGREE' CHARGE MADE

WARREN, O., Aug. 19.—(INS.)—Charging he had been starved for 24 hours and slapped, beaten and kicked, Tony Rotunno, of Sharon, Pa., testified yesterday that his alleged confession to the slaying of Police Chief Scott Vasbinder, of Newton Falls, was obtained by "third degree" methods.

Rotunno now on trial charged with first degree murder, is alleged to have been one of the three bandits who shot and killed Vasbinder when he caught them in the act of robbing a business establishment in Newton Falls. One of the robber trio also was killed.

The defendant was called to the stand in his own behalf when the state attempted to introduce the purported confession into evidence to bolster its case.

Mahoning County Detective Mickey Flynn, one of the officers Rotunno named as participating in the third degree efforts to make him confess, followed Rotunno to the stand and denied the defendant's testimony.

:: This is the medicine that your mother and your grandmother depended on ::

"It helps me!"

"My daughter Mearle is a high school girl. She was rundown and she suffered from irregularities, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has helped her wonderfully. She is regular now and she feels well and strong."

MRS. MINNIE L. BROOKS
1015 Olive St., Columbus, Georgia

98 out of every 100 women who report after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound say, "It helps me". . . . Hundreds of letters are received every day from grateful women. . . . They took the Vegetable Compound before and after childbirth; for weakened, rundown condition; during Change of Life; for painful and irregular periods; for strength after operations; for periodic backaches and headaches. . . . They give it to their daughters and they recommend it to their neighbors.

How can we add to their testimony? What can we say about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that is more convincing than the simple statement of half a million women—"It helps me?" Ask your druggist for the convenient tablet form. Find out for yourself how good it is.

"I used to have such terrifying backaches and nagging pains that I had to stay in bed several days at a time. Nothing seemed to help me until I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I had taken half a bottle I began to feel better."

FLOOD SWEEPS CHINA CAPITAL

PEIPING, China, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Thousands of Chinese in Shansi Province were left homeless 10 days ago when the greatest flood in 50 years rushed down a mountain bare of trees, leaving desolation in its wake.

Railways, highways and telegraph lines were washed away and delayed dispatches telling of the disaster reached here only yesterday.

At Tai Yuan-Fu, the provincial capital, 700 houses collapsed and 2,000 were partly submerged. In one village where a theatrical performance was in progress in the Buddhist temple, actors and audience were suddenly swept away by a torrent of water.

Five thousand soldiers are working feverishly to repair huge breaches in dykes built five centuries ago and guarded by an iron unicorn which the natives now bitterly revile for sleeping at its post.

RAIL ENGINEER GUEST OF KING

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Augustus Phillips, of Falls City, Neb., a locomotive engineer, is back from Bulgaria still a bit dazed by the reception he said King Boris gave him.

No sooner had Phillips arrived in his native Bulgaria for a visit, he said, than the King, whose hobby is locomotives, sent a carriage and a military escort to bring him to the summer palace at Varna. Phillips quoted the King as having said:

"You know, railroading is my hobby. We never have a new engine over here but I pull the throttle and start the train going. There is a lot I want to ask you."

Open-Air Car Salon Continues Tomorrow

The open air salon of Ford automobiles, which opened yesterday on a lot opposite Hotel Schenley, will continue through tomorrow night. Thousands of persons already have visited the display, which is featured by a motion picture showing the performance of the new cars.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

It's the kind of sound you feel, but never hear . . . It shoots out unexpectedly from vacant lofts, tags you on the street and spends itself in the recesses of a subway kiosk . . . It may touch you as you stroll by a low casement in Tin Pan Alley or a dark stoop in the Bowery . . . There's no accounting for its origin or its methods . . . Sometimes it carries you to the ecstasies of material frenzy and other times it leaves you dripping in the fog of boarding-house failure . . . It's the wail of the city . . . The silent, mixed cry of the 7,000,000.

This is the story of Patsy Weidman . . . When she was 10 years old, the errant cry slipped out of the Big City on the tail of a rattler and zoomed across the 200 miles of tracks to the quaint town of Pottersville . . . Patsy was singing at a Sunday school social and all the respectable gentry of the little community were in the audience . . . They were good people with large families, comfortable homes, and cows in the backyard . . . The majority of them had never been to New York, but the glossy pages of the magazines had told them of the glamour and riches that were bestowed upon the successful stars of Broadway . . . As Patsy completed her turn and the applause of her friends rang through the crude auditorium, the grocer's wife bent over the seat in front of her to whisper to Patsy's mother . . . "You've a fine little girl, Mrs. Weidman, maybe some day she'll be one of them there actresses on the stage and you will be riding around Pottersville with your head high in pride" . . . Mrs. Weidman giggled nervously . . . She always believed her daughter was the prettiest lass for miles around, and silently she turned away to hide the expression of hope that corroborated the words of the grocer's wife . . . That was the day that the wail of the city came into Pottersville with the stealth of a house-breaker and the silent roar of a bad omen.

When Patsy was 16, her mother packed her into a day coach, and with a final kiss sent her to New York . . . "Take good care of yourself, and remember to write every day," she said with tears that rolled to her lips. . . . "We'll say a little prayer for you each night, Patsy" . . . Patsy's younger sisters and a few friends ran after the train and waved goodbye. . . . Pottersville was answering the city's challenge and before long it would be opening Vanity Fair to Patsy Weidman's picture. . . . She would be stretched languorously on a silken chaise-lounge, smoking a Russian cigaret through a long ivory holder and her French maid would be standing beside her with telegrams from all the famous producers. . . . That was the vision they had. . . .

After three months on Broadway, Patsy connected. . . . She was signed by a small-time vaudeville act to do a dance and be part of the "and Co." . . . Her salary was $25 a week, but that was a lot of money . . . "Why your father was earning much less than that when he married me," her mother wrote. . . . But Patsy knew $25 hardly paid her expenses. . . .

The summer rolled around and the vaudeville act flopped. . . . Her next job was in a third-rate cafe in Coney Island. . . . She sang torch ballads and received $20 a week for bringing tears to the eyes of the molls of racketeers who frequented the spot. . . . The place was more or less the hang-out for the small-timers on the edge of the big dough. . . . One day she met Harry Tadlow. . . . He was a heavy set man in his thirties with the kindly smile of a gambler who had won and lost so often that life held no great thrill for him. . . . One night he asked the proprietor of the cafe to introduce him to Patsy, and she sat at his table between shows. . . . He seemed to know all about the pit-falls of New York and advised her on all her problems. . . . "He is such a nice man," she later wrote. "He never gets fresh with me. . . He is the only friend I have in New York and I hope you can meet him some time soon." . . .

Harry called her every day and drove her home from Coney Island when she was through with her work . . . Three months passed and the friendship had developed as far as it could go and still remain within bounds . . . Harry had played his hand well and had won her confidence . . . Now was the time to strike . . . It was early in the afternoon that he called her on the phone one day and told her how he stood . . . "I can't marry you at present, but I can't go on living without you," he said. "Patsy, I love you very much . . . Do you understand?" . . . Patsy understood, and protested that such a state of affairs was impossible . . . She cried . . . She didn't want to lose her only friend . . . "Well, then, the devil with it . . . You're like all the rest," he shouted into the mouthpiece . . . I'm through with you and don't you ever try to get in touch with me again." . . . He slammed the receiver on the hook, threw his hat angrily on the floor and walked out into the street . . . There was a madly careening sedan screeching to a stop as he stepped on the sidewalk . . . A hoarse voice yelled, "That's him," and a spray of machine-gun bullets battered him to the pavement . . . Harry had been put on the spot two minutes after his telephone call . . .

Police traced the message to Patsy's boarding house . . . "Yes, he called me up," she admitted, "but I know nothing about the shooting . . . I didn't even know what his business was . . . He never told me a thing . . . Patsy was held as a material witness in one of the most important gang killings of the year . . . The newspapers boomed their daily head-lined salutes at her cell . . . The obscure little Coney Island singer had made the front pages . . . There were all sorts of pictures, but none like those in the smooth pages of Vanity Fair . . . A woman came to see her one night . . . It was Harry's wife . . . "You little home-breaker," she spat. . . The matrons were forced to carry her away from the distraught prisoner . . . The bewildered police arrested numerous suspects and released them within an hour, but Patsy remained under bolt and key for six months.

Patsy was finally released . . . But there were no jobs for a dead gangster's gal . . .

It smacks you as you turn a corner . . . It dances gleefully in and out of open windows and drops before your feet as you pass . . . And on mischievous days it scurries out beyond the city's walls to tag you on a Sunday school rostrum . . . It's the wail of the city.

New Picture Material Found

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 19.

The so-far profitless search made by Universal for an Indian to play the lead in "Laughing Boy" brings forth a promising by-product.

He is Reb Russell, a quarter Cherokee and an All-American football star at Northwestern University two years ago.

The newcomer is taking tests for an important role in Universal's new serial, "The Lost Special," by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle. After he finishes in this picture, the studio expects to develop him into promising star material for westerns.

Frank Albertson

Frank Albertson has the lead in "The Lost Special," with Ernie Nevers, the former football star from Stanford, in support.

With the departure of the Olympic athletes and hundreds of thousands of visitors, go more than 5,000 people who got into the studios during the two weeks of the games.

During the two weeks period, Paramount studios handled almost 800 visitors alone while United Artists took care of around 700. In normal times, the number of visitors is one-tenth of that number.

BOULEVARD CHATTER

Marlene Dietrich is wearing her hair frizzed out like an African fuzzy-wuzzy for some scenes in "The Blonde Venus" . . . Regis Toomey and his wife played host on the pleasure ship, La Playa, over the week-end. It was his birthday . . . When Cecil B. de Mille knocks off on the "Sign of the Cross" set for lunch, Paramount looks like a Roman holiday. Saw Stanhope Wheatcroft, who has played more tuxedo parts than any man in Hollywood, dressed like a Roman Senator . . . Evalyn Knapp and Donald Cook stepping again, at the Frolics . . . Jack Gilbert's wedding present to Virginia Bruce was a grand piano. The new Mrs. Gilbert is an accomplished pianist . . . Dorothy Wilson, who stepped from behind a typewriter to play the lead in "The Age of Consent," has been answering telephone calls. Thirty-five old friends called up to see if her stenographic job had been filled up . . . She's making personal appearances, going from San Francisco to Salt Lake by plane to be Queen of the third annual American Air Rodeo.

Virginia Bruce

WALTHALL IN COME-BACK

For those who have missed the gentle "Little Colonel," Henry B. Walthall has started a come-back in "Cabin in the Cotton." As a result of his work in the Richard Barthelmess picture, Warner Brothers have cast him for an important role in "Central Park," a story of New York.

Marilyn Miller Lounging in Hollywood Listening to Broadway's Lure

Marilyn Miller, protege of the late Florenz Ziegfeld, who deserted Broadway for a career on the screen, today considering several "big money" offers from Broadway. The Capitol Theater wants her to appear in a stage presentation and there is a musical comedy in prospect for rehearsal in the autumn.

Leo Carrillo In Fulton

By EDWARD W. GOSS

Although "Racetrack," current in the Fulton, is by no means a great picture it is entertaining and boasts several excellent moments.

These moments, in the main, are directly due to the impressive acting of the star, Leo Carrillo, who portrays an Italian-American bookmaker. The work turned in by the rest of the cast, with the possible exception of Lee Moran, is unimportant and weak compared with that of Carrillo.

There is nothing startlingly new in the story. The bookmaker adopts a waif. The waif's father is dead and the mother "went off with the show." The bookie develops a great love for his adopted son. Knowing that racetracks are not exactly the best atmosphere for a young boy, the bookie tries to talk his lad into going off to school, but it's no bet. The lad insists on becoming a jockey.

Customary to such stories, the boy's mother turns up and the bookie is forced to make an important decision. The mother's return could have been made a "heart-wringer." For the good of the picture too much sentiment was avoided.

Besides Carrillo, the cast includes Junior Coghlan, playing the waif; Kay Hammond, the mother, and Lee Moran, partner to the bookie.

A Hearst Metrotone news reel, showing President Hoover accepting the Republican nomination for the presidency; Mayor Jimmy Walker at Albany and the Olympic aquatic events, also is on the bill.

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

RKO in a series of "opportunity revues," held throughout the United States, tried out thousands of youngsters lured with the promise of a chance to become performers on the professional vaudeville stage. From applicants totaling close to 30,000 there were selected 38 winners who will assemble in New York September 19 to begin rehearsal of what will be called "National Opportunity Revue," the tour of which will begin in New York October 4. Bobby Connelly, noted dance and stage director, will have charge of the rehearsals and initial presentations. Twenty-one cities outside of New York furnished single performers, while several were chosen from New York and Brooklyn.

* * *

Billy Watson, one of the more prominent figures of burlesque, whose "Beef Trust" show used to be an annual visitor, says he will "come back" after being out of the show business for some time. The first recruits will be a chorus of 30 girls decidedly not of the willowy type. They must be cornfeds, weighing 175 to 205 pounds and as spry on their feet as gals half their weight. Watson, himself, will head the company, as of old.

* * *

Frank Craven, prominent playwright and actor, wrote the story, "Divided by Two," in which the two sons of Charlie Chaplin will make their screen debut, under a contract recently signed.

* * *

Paul McGrath will be a member of the company supporting Ruth Gordon in "Here Today," new George Kaufman comedy now in rehearsal . . . Edith King, who used to play opposite Paul in stock in the Pitt, is a member of a resident company in Elizabeth, N. J. . . . "The Public Be Damned" has been selected as a title for the next John Barrymore film . . . BITS OF LIFE — All in a Day — BY MARK HELLINGER

In Which the Customers Do the Work

"LISTEN carefully, my friend," writes Adam Taylor, or Port Chester, N. Y., "while I unfold to you the sad tale of Mada Rolyat, which is as good a name as any for the gentleman involved. Until recently, Mada was in the employ of a local amusement park.

"For a period of four years he had worked conscientiously and had done his very best to further the interests of his employers. In the end he was rewarded by—but wait, I'm getting ahead of myself. Which is quite a trick if I do it, as you used to say.

"Okay, Mark. Shortly after our hero began working for the park, his ability was recognized and he was given a managerial position on one of the many devices. The following year he was handed a similar position on a larger ride with a corresponding increase in salary.

"We skip a couple of years now and coast to May 1, 1931. That day finds Mada managing a big device and Joey, a very good friend of his, working as his assistant. Now, in order for you to get the complete drift of this, I must tell you at this point that the state compels amusement parks to give their women employes relief periods during the day and night that average about 20 minutes every two hours or so. In addition, let me tell you that this particular park is run on a very strict disciplinary basis that prohibits the intermingling of men and women employes during working hours.

"Be that as it may—nevertheless, however, and how have you been—Joey, the assistant, fell rather hard for one of the girls whom we will call Margie. Love being what it is, if I'm not too insulting, it turned out that everytime Margie got a relief, Joey also went off duty. Which meant that Joey was absent from his device far too frequently to please anyone but Margie.

"Mada hated to say anything to Joey. He appreciated the beauty of a glowing love and he had no desire to interfere. More, he had worked on equal terms with Joey on several previous jobs and he did not want to display his sudden authority. So he just let the matter slide until his superior officer noticed the frequency with which Joey left his work.

"Then it was Mada who got the call down. He was told in no uncertain terms that the practice must be stopped. He took it—but he said nothing to Joey. Maybe he figured that no romance in an amusement park could last more than a few weeks anyhow, and that Joey would soon stick to the job of his own volition.

"Another week went by and Mada received a final warning.

"'If you cannot manage your men,' he was told, 'we'll have to get someone who can. Joey is working for you. It is up to you either to handle him or to fire him. See that you do either one immediately.'

"Whereupon Mada went to Joey and appealed to him.

"'I'm not calling you down, Joey,' he said. 'We've been good pals and I know that, when you're in love with a dame, you want to be with her as much as possible. But I wish you'd have a little consideration for me.

"I was given a final warning this morning. If you keep dodging away from work to meet Margie, I'm going to get fired for my inability to handle men. Let's stay pals, Joey. But give me a little break, will you?'

"The other man was very repentant. Never again, he said, would he put his friend in such a spot. He was through seeing Margie during working hours. Why, if Mada was fired because of him, Joey would never forgive himself. And so on and so forth.

"His promise held good—for two days. After that, he was caught in several parts of the park by different officials, petting Margie. Joey was, I mean—not the officials. It was the end of the season by that time, however, and they let the matter slide.

"We come now, Mark, to the opening of the 1932 season. The first day found Joey installed as manager of one of the biggest rides in the amusement park. And Mada, who had only tried to help a pal, was refused a job because of an illeged inability to handle men. Irony, did you say? Well, grab a load of the ending:

"The local paper in this section runs a weekly Auction Bridge contest. Inasmuch as Mada was now among the ranks of the great unemployed and had plenty of time on his hands, he entered the contest this week. And what is more, he won it.

"When it came time to receive his prize money, he was handed a $3 book of tickets good for any ride in the amusement park in which he had worked so long!" . . .

"HAVE you heard the difference," inquires Bill Plankington, "between a Park avenue apartment and a yell?

"You can let a yell!" . . .

"IT HAPPENED the other day in Hollywood," writes Al Schwartz, "where men are men. One of the big shot directors, who had established quite a reputation for himself by discovering new material in the female form and developing them into stars, had been keeping an eye on a bonnie lassie in the extra ranks who outshot the rest of the clan by far.

"After several scenes had been shot, he approached the pretty maiden.

"'How would you like to become a famous star?' he asked. And then, without waiting for a reply, he added: 'See my secretary the first thing in the morning and your name will soon be in lights.'

"The lassie looked at him.

"'Oh, Mr. G——,' she murmured in a disappointed voice. 'Aren't you going to ask me to come into your office?'

"The great man explained patiently that his time was very valuable and that his secretary could handle the matter.

"'But, Mr. G——,' she repeated. 'Aren't you even going to invite me to your apartment or to buy me one little drink?'

"By this time the director was fed up. He pointed a finger at his protege.

"'Now, listen,' he said, 'if we're going to get anywhere together, it's going to be strictly on a business basis. I will not mix pleasure with business.'

"The girl looked highly annoyed.

"'Gosh, darn it,' she said mournfully, 'I just knew there'd be a string attached to it!'" . . .

* * *

"THEY laughed at me," writes L. A., "when I walked up to the piano.

"With every step I took, I could hear their snickers. It was a large party, too. And they were only laughing at me.

"But their laughter turned to amazement in a very few seconds.

"For I was the installment collector and I soon had the piano out of the joint!" . . .

14 MEN FREED IN BAZZANO SLAYING

Sleuths Rearrest 9 as Public Enemies; 2 Pittsburghers

criminal lawyer and known as the new "mouthpiece of Broadway," a title he is said to have inherited from the late Bill Fallon. Leibowitz pleaded:

"Why, many of these men are prominent businessmen in their own home towns. Why can't they be freed now? Do you know that several United States Senators have interested themselves in their case and that some of them are on their way here now to demand justice for these men."

The defender of Vincent Coll, suspected Harlem "baby killer," and Al Capone, however, refused to name the "United States Senators" who are interested.

Detectives both here and in Pittsburgh hailed the roundup of the suspects as clearing up not only the Bazzano murder but the massacre of John, Arthur and James Volpe in Bazzano's coffee shop in Pittsburgh four weeks ago today. Detectives claimed the murder of Bazzano resulted when he refused to reveal the identity of the Volpe slayers, which gangsters thought he knew.

REVENGE HELD MOTIVE

It was murder for revenge, detectives said. In reconstructing the crime, they said they believed Bazzano had been lured to New York to attend a meeting of yeast racketeers. Behind locked doors a rope was placed around Bazzano's neck, they believed, and, when he failed to respond to the first question, the rope was pulled taut.

This torture failing, Bazzano was stabbed with an ice pick, police said. Twenty-two such wounds were found in his body when a pedestrian stumbled over a sack in which it had been placed. The numerous stab wounds, detectives said, represented a stab for each of the torture mob—a precaution to prevent a squeal.

During the hearing before Judge Folwell only four witnesses appeared. They were called to attempt to identify the suspects in the killing of a gasoline station attendant in Bergen County, N. J. They failed to pick out any of the suspects.

ARRAIGNMENT SET

The nine will be arraigned in Jefferson Market Court this afternoon on the public enemy act. Leibowitz, announcing he planned to defend them, bitterly criticized the police or their methods in the present case. He said:

"An indiscriminate arrest like the present one only glorifies gangsters. It makes heroes out of them and makes a farce out of the administration of criminal law. The police should gather their evidence well before acting, instead of merely grabbing everyone in sight who has a police record."

HIT-RUN DRIVER INJURES CHIEF

Believed to have been struck by a hit-and-run driver, early today, while patroling the Wilmerding-Pitcairn road, Police Chief Clyde Brant, of Trafford City, was in a serious condition in Columbia Hospital with a possible fracture of the pelvis and several fractured ribs and other serious injuries, according to a hospital report.

He was found unconscious along the highway by a motorist and taken to the hospital by Pitcairn police.

FARM STRIKERS TIGHTEN SIEGE

SIOUX CITY, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Striking farmers augmented their forces today to tighten their grip on Sioux City—key point in their "war" for higher prices.

Dakota County (Nebraska) farmers meeting in Dakota City, five miles south of here, voted their support and were patrolling roads leading into Sioux City from the south today.

More South Dakota farmers were also picketing the highways but struck a possible snag when Olaf Eidem, United States District Attorney at Sioux Falls, began an investigation into the stopping of trucks by farmers. Sheriff John Johnson, of Minnehaha County, expressed the belief that interstate commerce was being interfered with.

After a conference lasting far into the night milk producers and distributors broke up again without coming to terms. The disagreement, which precipitated the present blockade, arose over demands of farmers for a 100 per cent increase in milk prices.

BARES RECLUSE MURDER 'TIP'

GREENFIELD, Ind., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Mrs. Nellie Grist, of this city, today told of the visit to her home on August 11 of a stranger who informed her that Miss Jane Surget Merrill had been slain at Natchez, Miss.

Miss Merrill, a wealthy recluse, was murdered at her home in Natchez August 5. Officers investigating the slaying have expressed the belief that she was killed by a Negro who later was shot to death while resisting arrest at Pine Bluff, Ark.

Mrs. Grist said the man who came to her home introduced himself as "Mr. Austin." He said his home was in Jackson, Miss., and that he called to tell Mrs. Grist that Miss Merrill had left directions for her to be notified in case of her death.

Mrs. Grist said she was not acquainted with Miss Merrill intimately or personally, but that her father, John M. Hall, now dead, had at one time had business dealings with Miss Merrill's father.

AIRSHIP AKRON HONORS WRIGHT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—The giant airship Akron visited the capital today to take part in a birthday celebration for Orville Wright, one of aviation's pioneers.

Coming to Washington from a series of training flights at sea, the huge ship demonstrated to thousands who followed her aerial maneuvers the rapid strides made by aeronautics since the Wright brothers—Orville and Wilbur—began their experiments years ago.

After flying over the city for some time the Akron released some of the planes she carries. After brief flights they returned to the airship.

President Hoover twice viewed the Akron as it passed over the White House.

CONGRESS CLUB PAYROLL TAKEN

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—The Congressional Country Club's $2,900 payroll was taken from Miss Fannie Lytle, the club secretary, this morning by two young holdup men, who seized her as she stepped from her car at the clubhouse.

The money, in a small leather bag, was still in the machine when Miss Lytle got out to open a garage door. The two jumped at her. One held her while the other turned the machine about, then both fled in the car. Immediate pursuit by club employes was fruitless. The clubhouse is in Montgomery County, Md., a few miles from the capital.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—(AP.)—Stating his intention of attending the national American Legion convention in Portland, Ore., September 12, Secretary Hurley said last night, in a radio address as released by the War Department, that it is well for Legionnaires to recall the pledges of their constitution.

Reference was made to the bonus issue as follows:

"Some of us demand immediate payment of the bonus. Others prefer to await its maturity. The American Legion does not consist of stereotypes. We are each free and independent Americans, entitled to free and honest opinions."

BRISTOW, Okla., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—A resolution protesting the scheduled appearance of Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War, before the state American Legion convention at Muskogee August 28-30, was adopted yesterday by the Klingensmith Legion Post of Bristow.

The resolution contended a speech before the convention by the War Secretary, who is an Oklahoma World War veteran, would be out of line with his stand on the bonus question and his action in connection with the clash between the bonus expeditionary force and the military in Washington.

Take Farming From Wall St., Give It a Plow

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

We paid for our lessons in Wall Street even if we did lose them in the mail.

We have some badly frostbitten ideas of why stocks and bonds scamper up and down like mice in a belfry.

But we never could see why wheat, cotton and corn are subject to the call and demand of speculators who eat cake, wear silk and hate succotash.

It's a tough racket when you have to spend your life digging for another man's fishing trips.

And that is what the dirt farmer is up against. He's got to raise two crops to pay the freight charges on one. All he gets from his cows is red ink. If he gets sore and quits farming he starves. If he raises just enough for his family he's bankrupt. If he raises too much it's worse than none at all.

The farmer is at the mercy of the middleman and the broker. And there is an old adage that you can't get rich with another man counting your money.

BUGLERS TO VIE TENTH TIME

For the tenth time this year, the drum and bugle corps of American Legion posts in Uniontown and Greensburg will vie honors, probably presenting the keenest competition of any of the many posts entered in the contest to be staged at Forbes Field tonight. Greensburg has bested the Uniontown boys five times, while the Uniontown corps won four times. Uniontown holds the state championship.

Greensburg won fifth place at Harrisburg two years ago, when the first state meet was held, and a year ago at Easton took second place. They were third in the national meet at Detroit last year. The personnel consists of 90 men, with George Hunter as drum major. Corps of more than 35 members are in Class A and those of lesser numbers are in Class B. The contest will be judged by seven men whose names will be withheld until the judging has been completed.

In addition to Uniontown, the Norwood corps will give Greensburg stiff opposition. The annual state competition is directed under the state committee on bands, drill teams and bugle corps, with J. Wayne Steele, of Philadelphia, chairman. Benjamin Giffen is in charge of local arrangements.

Convention Highlights

Public reviewing stand seats for tomorrow's parade are being sold by Legionnaires at the William Penn Hotel lobby, Gimbel Brothers, Kaufmann's, McCreery & Company and Boggs & Buhl. There are 10,000 seats available.

Pranks and stunts are seen wherever the veterans gather. A woman joyously clanging a large cowbell from the sixth floor window of the William Penn Hotel was one victim. A funster, two floors above, poured a pitcher of icewater on her head. The bell narrowly missed Oliver avenue pedestrians, but a few drops of water were felt.

Veterans, families and friends were to find Kennywood Park a mecca for the annual picnic this afternoon and tonight. Features included prizes for the best dressed veteran and the prettiest girl dancing with a buddy.

Co-operation of motorists during tomorrow's parade is being asked by city officials. Special no-parking rules will be effective, especially in Smithfield, Wood and Diamond streets and Fourth avenue. North Side to Last End traffic is asked to use the Ninth Street Bridge via Duquesne way, Eleventh street, Grant street, Seventh avenue to boulevard. Etna, Aspinwall and East End traffic for South Side or West End should use Boulevard of the Allies. South Side and West End traffic for North Side should use Manchester Bridge.

Reunions are side features for visiting veterans. The 300th Light Field Artillery, 83d Division, will hold a business session at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and banquet at 8:30 p. m. at the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Ambulance Company No. 30, 7th Division, holds its first reunion tomorrow at the Mayfair Hotel.

The 2nd Division, A. E. F., holds its breakfast and meeting at 7:30 a. m. tomorrow at the Smithfield Grill. The 2nd Division has headquarters at 628 Grant street for members to get together.

LEADERS ELECTED BY LEGION

in arrangements, Daniels arrived at the Pennsylvania Station this morning, missing the reception committee that had assembled to greet him at the Baltimore and Ohio Station.

A batch of resolutions, dealing with such subjects as beer, unemployment and the bonus were ready for presentation at the concluding sessions tomorrow.

GAIETY THROUGH NIGHT

The gay spirit of the legionnaires was well buoyed up all night long. Hotels were noisy and from many windows came water-filled paper bags for pedestrian traffic below. From one window the stream of a fire hose spurted.

However, some of the legionnaires elected to sleep, and, for those, fellow veterans sounded a fire bell throughout the night. But it was all good fun and no casualties were reported.

Two features await public participation tonight. The huge drum and bugle corp competition at Forbes Field, beginning at 8 p. m. for state championship in both classes A and B, and the street parade of the "40 and 8" through North Side and downtown.

Twenty-three corps, including 13 class A corps will compete in the Oakland program. Uniontown will seek to retain its championship against two formidable competitors, Greensburg and Tarentum, while other corps holding prominent place in Legion competitions include Norwood and DuBois.

'40 AND 8' ELECTS

Dr. R. A. AuRand, of Allentown, was elected Grand Chef de Gare of the Pennsylvania "40 and 8," fun organization of the American Legion last night. Others elected were Henry DeMarra, of Lancaster, grand conducteure; Thomas W. Munroe, of Derry, commissaire intendant; Matthias A. Walter, of Scranton, grand chef de train; Salvatore Cancelliere, Pittsburgh, grand cheminot of the Southwest District, and Joseph A. Schneider, of Wilkes-Barre, grand cheminot of the Northeast District.

The 40 and 8 will parade in costume with box-car and locomotive, accompanied by their auxiliary members, before staging the annual "wreck," or initiation, at the Academy Theater. The parade will start at 7 o'clock from Irwin and North avenues, proceeding to Federal street, Sixth street, Liberty avenue, Boulevard of the Allies, Smithfield street, Sixth avenue, Seventh street, to Penn avenue and thence to the theater.

The auxiliary, meeting at the Moose Temple, will nominate and elect officers in its closing sessions. The annual dinner in honor of retiring officers was to be held at 6 o'clock in the Pittsburgh Field Club.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., Aug. 19.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

This is "fiesta" day in Santa Barbara, the other days in Santa Barbara are "siesta" days. (If you don't speak all these languages it's not my fault). Hundreds and hundreds of beautiful horses in the parade, and a man without a silver mounted saddle up here is a vagrant. Everybody in Spanish costumes. These big blonde Iowans look kinder funny in 'em; but they have 'em on. (Sometimes backwards.)

Will Rogers

Every town should have some kind of yearly celebration (I am writing like Brisbane). Didn't Rome have its annual bathing festival? Didn't Cairo hold some kind of female "rodeo?" Albany, New York, is going to make the Walker investigation a yearly fall festival. So think up something for your town to celebrate, have a parade. Americans like to parade. We are a parading nation, "upluribus paraditorious" (some paraders). Yours, WILL.

W. C. T. U. SEEKS DRY CONGRESS

SEATTLE, Aug. 19.—AP.)—With only one slight revision, the fifty-eighth national convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union yesterday adopted a report of the resolutions committee which opposed platform planks of both parties on prohibition and promised support, regardless of party affiliations, to dry candidates for Congress and the State Legislatures.

The one change came in the section devoted to party planks. Referring to the Republican plank, the report had said "it would practically repeal the Eighteenth Amendment. We are opposed to the submission of this alternative amendment."

Falling in Love Easier Than Continuing That Way

Are some girls born fickle?

First there was Larry, with such lovely eyes and a profile like Clark Gable. Then there was Tommy. He didn't rate so much as a movie star, but he played football. And now it's Tony, dark and dangerous looking, and a musician.

"How'll I know when I'm really in love?" she moans. "I thought I was terribly in love with both Larry and Tommy. I think I'm in love with Tony now. But——"

Know what's the matter? Listen!

"Dear Sally—

"I wonder if you'll help me out. I just can't figure myself, or why I'm like I am, and I need some help.

"How do you know when you're really in love? I think I'm in love now. In fact I'm sure of it until I remember what happened before, and then I don't know. Gee! It's terrible.

THREE MEN

"For I thought I was deeply in love twice before. First I went with Larry. That was when I was 18. He had the most gorgeous eyes, and he was handsome, too. He looked just like Clark Gable. I thought he was grand and that I had found my big romance. I went with him six months. Then I met Tommy. He was big and blond and not really good looking, but he was a wonderful fellow. He played football on the State College team, and—well, I fell for him just as hard as I had for Larry. He used to come home for weekends and take me out, and I thought he was simply marvelous.

"And then I met Tony. Tony is a musician in an orchestra. He is slender and dark and full of fire, and he plays the most divine music!

"I have been going with him for six months and I am just crazy about him. But will it last?

"And what is the matter with me? I don't want to fall in and out of love like that. It scares me. Supposing I should get married and then fall for still someone else?

IS ALARMED

"I don't know what to do. I don't seem to know my own mind. Was I just born fickle? Or is everybody like that?

"I am 20, and I just don't know what to think. I see other girls in love for keeps, and sometimes I think there must be something wrong with me. Is there? Will I go on and on like this, and never know where I am?

"Please help me, and tell me what all this means.

"ISABEL."

Why won't your heart stay put? Because you won't make it.

That answer surprises you, doesn't it? You feel that "if it's real love" your heart will stay put without any effort on your part—But it won't.

Falling-in-love is a very easy matter, Isabel. Any monkey can do it. But staying in love is a very different performance, and it takes a mighty fine and highly civilized human being to put it over.

You think you've "fallen in love" when you've been swayed by an impulsive fascination for eyes or shoulders or an alluring line, and you can't understand why the impulse should cool.

But impulses always cool, even the noblest. And there comes a time when, if you wish to hold love, you must do it coldly and deliberately, in the face of every wobbly desire to quit.

That's how love stays, Isabel. It isn't just a gift. It's something every woman has to learn. For there never was a woman who didn't feel the temptation, now and then, to leave the man of her choice; and if you're only going to stick when you like to stick, your heart will never stay put, little girl.

As a matter of fact, I doubt if any one of your big moments is worth prolonging into a life time habit. But some day you will meet a man who may and should be yours for keeps; and when he comes—fight to hold him, honey. Fight everything and everyone, particularly your own self.

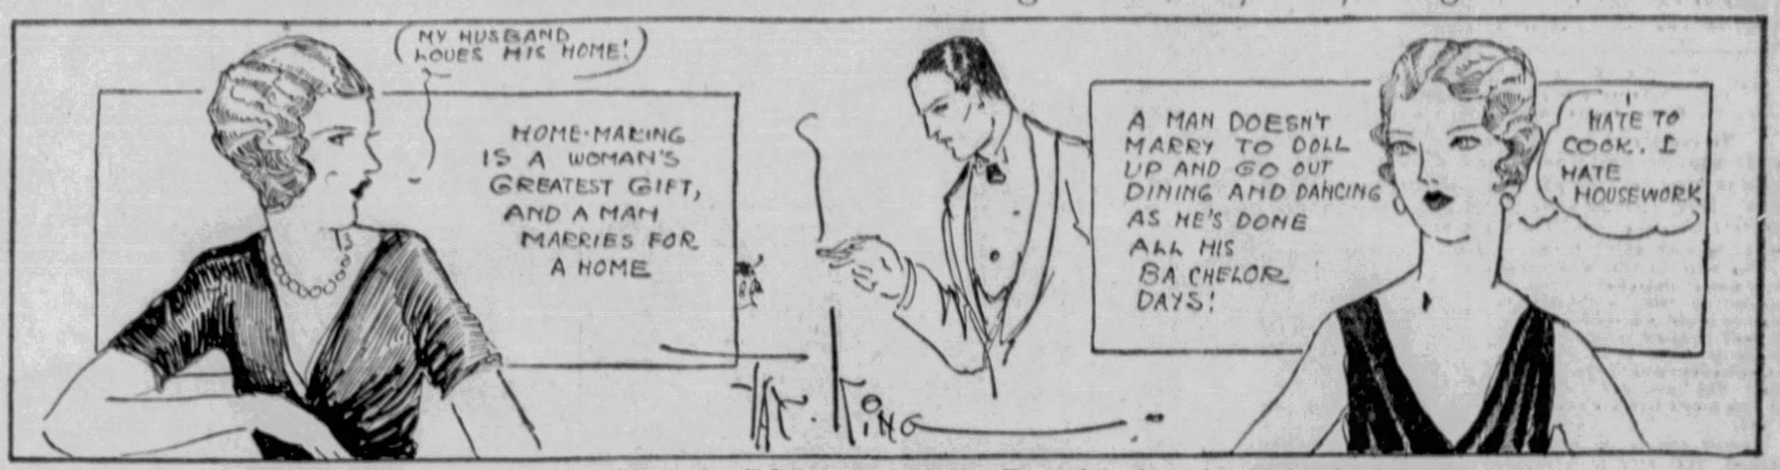
A Comfortable Home Is Man's Marriage Goal, Says Fay King



(MY HUSBAND LOVES HIS HOME!)
HOME-MAKING IS A WOMAN'S GREATEST GIFT, AND A MAN MARRIES FOR A HOME
A MAN DOESN'T MARRY TO DOLL UP AND GO OUT DINING AND DANCING AS HE'S DONE ALL HIS BACHELOR DAYS!
I HATE TO COOK. I HATE HOUSEWORK
FAY KING

By FAY KING

When a man marries, he marries for a home.

He does not have to marry for companionship, and a "pal."

He can always find plenty of girls willing to be taken to dine and dance, who will flatter and entertain him. He can always drop in some place to kill an evening with the boys.

But the time comes when he is tired of playing around, tired of pool rooms, dance halls, clubs and speaks.

He wants a real home full of comfort and content, no matter how simple, and so he marries.

And I am afraid that many marriages today fall because girls do not realize how much a well kept home, and home cooking, mean to the men they have married.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Go Easy Taking Sun Baths Till You Get a Tan

Sun baths have become exceedingly popular within the last few years. To take them has become almost a mania with some, while by many others it is regarded as an indispensable part of the summer holiday.

Dr. Copeland

Whether in the city or in the country, one can always see these modern worshipers of the sun. In the city, roofs and other available spaces are utilized, while at the seaside the body is exposed on the beaches to the penetrating and beneficial rays of the sun.

Gradual and regular exposure of the body to the sun is beneficial. It not only gives a healthy appearance to the skin, but it also enables the body to absorb and store vitamin D, so necessary for protection of the body against rickets and other constitutional disturbances. It is most important for the growing child, who has great need for this vitamin. For this reason sun baths are advised for all infants, as well as giving them cod liver oil.

But it must not be overlooked that too long exposure of the body to the sun in the beginning is detrimental. When the skin is first exposed there is an inflammatory reaction shown by redness and burning of the skin. It is similar to a "first degree" burn such as may result from brief contact with hot liquids or fire.

When the protective layer of the skin is destroyed and blisters form, this is called a "second degree" burn, and may often prove serious.

In severe exposure to fire, irritating acids or scalding liquids, the underlying structure of the skin may be destroyed, and this is spoken of as a "third degree" burn. Such a serious burn may occur when the body, unused to it, is exposed to the sun for a long period of time. It should be noted, too, that overexposure to the sun is more likely to damage blonds and fair people, who have very sensitive skins.

Gradual exposure of the skin to the sun, therefore, is the only safe method. When the skin is slowly exposed tanning occurs, and this gives the skin protection against the harmful action of sunburn. With a good coat of tan you can stay in the sun for an indefinite period every day. Too many vacations have been ruined and many serious ailments have resulted from careless exposure of the body to the sun; so go slow, and get a good coat of tan before trying a long sun-bath.

During the summer months it is seldom necessary to give cod liver oil to a child, but during the winter, when the sunlight is not as abundant or strong, cod liver oil should be given to assure the child receiving sufficient quantities of vitamin D. However, if a child is underweight and shows signs of rickets, cod liver oil should not be discontinued during the warm weather.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When dust is flying and the eyes smart from contact with it, try boric acid in a cupful of water and apply with an eye-cup. Atmospheric dust can kick up a lot of trouble with soul lanterns.

Squint not, flower face, if you would avoid wrinkles around the eyes. They call them laughing wrinkles, but that doesn't make the victim any happier. Forcing facial tissues into folds is a habit that is bound to imprint lines upon the human portrait. It is just as well to make one's face behave, especially if one is out to fight Popper Time and all his mean aids and abettors. At the first sign of crepiness anoint with a heavy cream every night, tap the fibers sharply and quickly, next morning bathe the face with ice cold water, and lave with witch hazel.

Household Hints

When mixing whitewash for ceilings add a handful of common salt, and the whitewash will spear more evenly.

If no one in the family knows anything about electricity, don't permit amateur jobs, etc. It will always cost you more in the long run, besides the risk the novice has of receiving a bad shock. Hire the neighborhood electrician for the job.

If you have unexpected company and the creamed chicken or fish seems scanty add two or three chopped hard-boiled eggs to the sauce and then serve it on slices of toast. Allow two slices of toast to each person and distribute the chicken or fish accordingly.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Exchanging Photographs

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it proper for a girl to give a young man, whom she has been going about with for over a year, her photograph? They are good friends, but may not be engaged for some time, if at all, due to many difficulties.

2. When giving a photograph as a gift, should it be framed or just given in a folder? The picture happens to be quite expensive without a frame.

3. If a young man and young woman break off after being engaged, or even just good friends, is it proper for both to return the presents they have received from the other, and if engaged, the engagement ring? T.

1. Yes, it is a most natural thing for friends of such good standing to exchange photographs . . . and it is correct for them to do so. The thing to keep in mind is that, if the photograph is autographed, the autograph-message should be a dignified one.

2. It is a bit presumptuous for us to have our photograph framed when we present it to a friend. This seems rather too definitely to suggest that the photograph must be kept in a conspicuous place. It's better not to do this . . . better to leave to our friend this decision as to whether or not the photograph is to be framed.

3. Yes.

The Gentleman Is Host

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When your young man friend comes to your home, who is to suggest what to do and where to go? M.

If there is to be any suggestion as to "going forth" to the theater, or to the movies, or to any other form of entertainment away from your home, this suggestion should come from the young man, since he will then be the host.

Carrots Are an Important Source of Vitamin A

Science now ranks this nourishing food along with butter and cod liver oil as a source of this vitamin.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator From New York,
Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

To provide a well-balanced diet has become one of the most important jobs of the modern housewife. She must know how to select her food and what foods form that well-balanced diet. Milk, cereals, meat, fruits and vegetables are the important divisions from which she can choose, and her choice must be such as to promote variety, economy and nutrition.

The carrot is one of our most wholesome vegetables. It is an economical food, nutritive, and may be served in a variety of ways. It may be eaten by itself, raw or in soups, stews or salads, or in combination with other vegetables. The value and importance of this simple food are overlooked, I fear.

Carrots contain important vitamins. They have more vitamin A than is found in leafy green vegetables, such as cabbage, lettuce and spinach. In addition, they contain vitamin B, and when eaten raw are an excellent source of vitamin C. The fresh, young carrot contains more vitamin C than the old. In cooking, the young carrot requires less time, and so loses less of its vitamin C content, which is readily destroyed by heat.

IMPORTANT SUBSTANCES

This valuable vegetable contains important mineral substances such as lime, phosphorus and iron. It is made up of about 5 to 10 per cent of sugar. Of greatest value is the presence of the yellow pigment found in carrots. It is an important substance, its true value only recently discovered and now believed to be similar in its effects though not the same as vitamin A.

Recent experiments show that the yellow pigment, or carotin, of the carrot is carried to the liver. There it is changed and stored in the body as vitamin A. Prior to this discovery, butter and cod-liver oil were believed to be the only available sources of this vitamin. It is now believed that the carrot is richer than butter as a source of vitamin A. Four ounces of carrots supply the body with five times as much of the vitamin as an ounce of butter.

EASILY ACQUIRED

The importance of vitamin A cannot be overemphasized. It should never be overlooked, and need not be when it may be so easily secured from a vegetable like the carrot.

Adults and children require an abundant supply of vitamin A. When this vitamin is deficient in the diet, the resistance of the body against disease is lowered. This promotes infections, especially of the eye, causes digestive upsets and a marked retardation in normal growth and development.

This important vegetable, fortunately, is within reach of everyone. It is inexpensive, keeps well, may be used in various ways and is available throughout the year. Though always known to be a nourishing food, it is only since the results of recent experiments have been published that its true special value has been realized. So many new important elements have been found in carrots that our eyes are open to its real value.

Contract Bridge -:- HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Distributional Insurance

The purpose of Approach bidding is to find the best contract in the combined hands, and the formula for learning what the best contract is, if the hand contains two or more alternative declarations, to permit partner to choose between them, in the meantime keeping the bidding as low as possible.

Mr. John D. Bibb, of Anniston, Ala., recently sent me the hand below, stating that it was played by South at a contract of four hearts, redoubled, and that, through failure to allow for unfavorable distribution, South was set one trick, although he probably could have made it by proper planning.

West—Dealer.

North: ♠AJ ♡K ◇109832 ♣J9764
West: ♠Q92 ♡987543 ◇J65 ♣8
East: ♠87654 ♡6 ◇AKQ7 ♣532
South: ♠K103 ♡AQJ102 ◇4 ♣AKQ10

The correct bidding of this hand would have been:

South	West	North	East
	Pass	Pass	Pass
1♡	Pass	INT(1)	Pass
3♣(2)	Pass	5♣(3)	Pass
6♣(4)	Pass	Pass	Pass

(1) Although the distribution of this hand is quite unbalanced and not suitable for no-trump play, the club and diamond suits are so weak that the notrump response is the best.

(2) Three hearts would be a possible bid here, but the honor strength of the hand is so good and the two suits are so solid that the absolute Forcing bid of three clubs is preferable to the semi-Forcing bid of three hearts.

(3) North must now give a double Raise, in view of his very fine distribution in support of clubs, plus a very important card—the King of hearts—even though it is a singleton. He cannot bid six, although he can find the playing-tricks to justify that bid, but this would fail to allow for the possibility of opponents holding honor-tricks which would defeat the Slam contract.

(4) In view of partner's Jump Raise, the Slam bid is justified, the singleton diamond being the deciding factor.

South	West	North	East
	Pass	Pass	Pass
1♡	Pass	INT	Pass
3♡	Pass	4♡	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

North and South must equally share the blame for the unfortunate result—South by failing to utilize the Approach principle and offer his partner the alternative of three roads to game—namely, hearts, clubs or no-trump—and North by raising South to a game contract in hearts, with only a singleton in the suit, forgetting for the moment the dangers of unfavorable distribution. West's Double of the four heart contract was really extremely optimistic.

TODAY'S QUESTION:

When able to do either, is it preferable to raise partner's suit bid or take out in another suit?

Answer: Having a choice between a Raise and a Takeout, a Forcing Takeout should always be preferred, and a simple Takeout, if in a higher ranking suit, so that the "One over One" may be used. If the Takeout suit is of lower rank, a Takeout should be preferred to a single Raise, but a Jump Raise should be preferred to a simple Takeout. In other words, if the Opening bid is one heart, the partner should bid one spade, or two diamonds, if he can give only a single Raise, but should bid three hearts in preference to a Takeout of two diamonds.

JAR COOKED SAUERKRAUT—To make sauerkraut in jars proceed as follows: Shred the cabbage as usual, pack tightly into jars (glass top preferred). Add 3 scant teaspoons of pure salt to a quart. Fill jars to within one inch of the top and seal. If packed well the liquid will come nearly to the top of the jar. Will be ready for use in six weeks.

CANNED WHOLE TOMATOES—Select firm, smooth, medium-sized tomatoes of uniform size. Scald until skins loosen, cold-dip, peel and remove stem end. Pack closely without crushing, into clean, hot jars, add 1 level teaspoon salt to each quart, fill with finely strained tomato juice, partly seal and process for 30 minutes in a hot water bath, or for 15 minutes in a steam pressure cooker at 5 pounds. Remove from canner and seal at once.

CANNED CORN ON COB—Remove husks and silk, boil on cob for 5 minutes. Pack into hot jars. Add 1 level teaspoon salt and 2 teaspoons sugar to each quart and fill with cooking water. Partly seal and process for 3 hours in a hot-water bath, or for 90 minutes in a steam pressure cooker at 10 pounds. Remove from canner and seal immediately.

When using 2-quart jars process for 4 hours in a hot-water bath, or for 2 hours in a steam pressure cooker at 10 pounds. One 2-quart jar will hold 7 or 8 ears.

SPICED GRAPE BUTTER—Wash grapes, remove stems, separate the pulp from the skins, and let stand overnight. Heat pulp to boiling point and drain through a colander. Add the skins to pulp and to each 5 pints of fruit add 5 cups brown sugar and ½ tablespoon of cloves and 1 of cinnamon. News from the resorts is still pouring in, and will until after Labor Day. And a few always linger in their favorite resort long after that date.

Among those returning are Mrs. James B. Oliver and her son-in-law and daughter, Marchese and Marchesa Dusmet, of Rome, Italy, and her granddaughter and grandson, Caroline Crittenden and James B. Crittenden. They are now in Sewickley. The Marchese and Marchesa will remain with Mrs. Oliver for some time. Mrs. Oliver and her granddaughter and grandson met them in New York when they landed, and went to Newport, R. I., for a few days.

Host at Saratoga

J. Frederic Byers is now in Saratoga Springs, and entertained at the Brook Club Tuesday. Mrs. Byers and their daughter Nancy are abroad.

One of the most interesting entertainments of the week down at White Sulphur Springs was the dinner-dance the George W. Crawfords gave in the Terrace dining room of the Greenbrier Wednesday evening for 26 guests. The event marked Mrs. Crawford's birthday.

Going to Cape Cod

The Walter C. Carrolls are leaving within a few days for Cape Cod, where they'll be the guests of the F. I. Merricks at their Hyannisport place.

Their daughter Florence will return to New London, Conn., after a few days in New York where she stopped at the Waldorf-Astoria, after visiting friends in Cape Cod. In New London she and her sister, Mary Edith Carroll, are guests of their sister, Mrs. Edward Standish Bradford, Jr. Mary Edith also has varied her stay in the East with visits along the coast.

Back in Town

Marjorie Kimball, the energetic president of the Junior League, is back in town after visiting in the East, and will be in Pittsburgh until the first of October. Her mother, Mrs. G. Cook Kimball, will go to Chicago in mid-September, where the Kimballs have taken an apartment. The Kimballs' older son, Richard, will stay in Pittsburgh this winter, I hear.

Have you heard that Mrs. William Salsbury and her children are home again? They've been visiting in Bay Head.

Pittsburghers to Report At Alumnae Convention

Since the city has two of its residents in the official family of the International Federation of Catholic Alumnae, it will be more than ordinarily interested in the tenth biennial convention, which will be held in Denver August 27 to 30. The Pittsburghers, Mrs. William H. Connell, Jr., who is treasurer, and Miss Naomi Larkin, who is chairman of literature, will make their reports on Monday, the 29th. The keynote address will be delivered by the Rt. Rev. Dr. Edward A. Pace, rector of the Catholic University of America and director of the federation.

SILK SUITS NOW CONSIDERED 'STANDARD EQUIPMENT' IN PARIS

Sketched in Paris

Paris Bureau,
Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 19.—The silk suit has made a name for itself in Paris this year. It has become a dozen costumes in one—street suit, luncheon costume, bridge dress, sports suit, dinner dress and many others. Because it may be so easily disguised, via new blouses and belts and other gadgets, it has become almost the "standard equipment" of Paris women for town and home wear.

* * *

THIS suit, designed by Vera Borea, is an excellent example of what the silk suit has become this year. The original model, in brown corded silk, with a blouse of drawn-work knitted fabric in cream color, appears everywhere. Many women have had it copied in other colors—especially in black, with white and colored blouses. The Princess de Rohan, on her recent visit to America, in company with the Countess Borea, confined her daytime wardrobe to this costume and wore it in several different color combinations.

* * *

LACINGS ARE, in general, one of the favorite Parisian ornaments this year. They are used not only on dresses and on coats, but on bags and shoes as well. The matching bag and pump, by Hellstern, shown in the sketch, are of brown calf, with a modification of the lacing treatment done in the same leather.

BUCS, GIANTS OPEN SERIES

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Giants Now Formidable. Best Olympic Sportsmen.
Taylor Becomes Asset. Ottawa Back in Hockey.
Howley Sees Buc Rally. Spitz Waits Four Years.

SOUTHPAW PLAGUE BREAKS OUT ANEW

THE POSTPONEMENT OF yesterday's scheduled game with the Dodgers, which, except for the washing out of the second half of a doubleheader with the Giants on July 7, was the first cancellation at Forbes Field since five contests in a row were prevented by rain May 10 to 14, deprived the Pirates of the novelty of batting against a right-hand pitcher. Now, with the coming of the Giants, the locals will have to keep right on batting against the southpaw plague that has wrought such havoc to their prospects. Manager Bill Terry may be expected to shoot Carl Hubbell, Bill Walker and Jim Mooney against the Rovers in as rapid order as possible, and in all probability Hubbell will start twice in the six-game series.

Carl Hubbell

And this same Hubbell has been Pittsburgh's particular jinx among the National League left-handers. The Bucs knocked him out here on July 8, but the loss was charged to Mooney, and aside from that they have defeated Carl only once in 13 grapples since he entered the league in 1928. So, with the Terrys showing greatly improved form on the present trip, the club that was able to beat the Rovers only three times in 13 games earlier in the season threatens plenty of trouble in this series, and the Gibsons may be hard pressed to hang on to second place.

AMONG THE SMART moves that Max Carey made in converting the Brooklyn club into a pennant bidder, one of the best was the picking up of Danny Taylor. When the Cubs tried to send Taylor to the minors, Carey refused to waive and after some dickering he obtained the West Newton citizen for less than $10,000.

For the Dodgers, Taylor has proved the most surprising bargain of the year. He has been a high-grade winning ball player ever since he joined the club, crowding Johnny Frederick out of center field and making himself one of the big factors in the Brooklyn drive by his hitting power, speed and hustle.

THE TAYLOR CASE shows again the great difference that can be brought about in a player by proper managerial handling. The methods of Rogers Hornsby in Chicago almost ruined Danny. Carey took him in hand and made him.

It is quite likely that Hornsby's failure to see Taylor's possibilities, and the great game that Danny proceeded to play for Brooklyn while Chicago was hunting high and low for another serviceable outfielder, formed one of the reasons for the dissatisfaction of the Bruin owners with the work of the since dismissed Rajah.

NOT THE LEAST feature of an impressive record attesting the extraordinary power of the Yankees this season is the fact that they have not yet been shut out. The American League's prospective champions have gone through 114 games without once being whitewashed, the only club in either major loop to remain unblanked at this late stage of the pennant proceedings. And yet the Yanks actually went scoreless for 18 consecutive innings without being charged with a shut out officially. In an exhibition game at Scranton a week ago today, Bob Shawkey and Justin McLaughlin combined to defeat them, 1 to 0, and the following day in Washington Alphonse Thomas held the McCarthys scoreless for nine innings, only to have Charley Ruffing's home run in the tenth give them a 1-to-0 victory and keep their record clean.

Dan Howley

THE FACT THAT Cincinnati is hopelessly out of the National League race while Brooklyn is a strong pennant contender is not to be taken as meaning that the Reds got all the worst of the big six-player trade with the Dodgers in the spring, Dan Howley wants it understood.

The Cincinnati manager, whose three-year contract expiring this fall may not be renewed in view of the prospective tail-end finish, says he is perfectly satisfied with the way the swap worked out. He blames all his troubles on the illness that kept Chick Hafey out for many weeks.

HOWLEY CONTENDS THAT many of those games lost by one run—and the Reds have dropped 28 of them—would have been won if Hafey had been in there with his dependable bat. "Take eight or nine of those games out of our 'Lost' column and put them among the victories and we'd be far from tailenders," Dan remarked.

The Red chief thinks Pittsburgh still has as good a chance as any other club in the flag fight. "The Pirates will come out of their slump," he says. "All teams have slumps. The Bucs are too good a ball club to go to pieces."

ACCORDING TO THE observations of Harry Salsinger during the Olympic Games, of all the nations competing, the best impression was made by the Germans, Canadians, Japanese and Americans. While the Germans did not win a single event, they lost several only by narrow margins. They tried very hard, and whenever beaten they lost graciously. They were always the first to congratulate the winners.

ONE TOUGH GUY at a time is Tony Canzoneri's motto. Assured that Billy Petrolle will be able to resume training in 10 days, and to go through with the scheduled lightweight title fight on the new date of October 14, Canzoneri has definitely passed up a proposed meeting with Kid Chocolate at an earlier show. His lightweight championship chance thus postponed, Chocolate soon will sail for a campaign in Europe.

The Canzoneri-Petrolle battle will be the opening number of the indoor season at Madison Square Garden in New York. Petrolle's injury killed the chance for an outdoor show and a larger gate. Max Schmeling and Mickey Walker, therefore, will get the last outdoor plum at the Long Island City Bowl on September 19. The agreement for that bout, by the way, gives 40 per cent to Schmeling and 17½ to Walker.

WHEN THE MEETING of the National Hockey League is held in Montreal next Monday, arrangements probably will be made for the return of the Ottawa Senators to the circuit for the coming season. Ottawa and Philadelphia withdrew a year ago on account of financial difficulties.

In the Canadian city it is believed conditions are now ripe for a return to the league. The Philadelphia franchise actually belongs to Pittsburgh, but until they have a suitable auditorium in which to play, promoters here will not think of taking another fling at the major game. It is the league's plan to have a nine-club organization next winter.

George Spitz

ONE OF THE greatest surprises in the Olympic Games was the failure of George Spitz to win the high jump. A victory for him was considered a certainty, in view of the fact that he had jumped higher than any other man that ever lived. Spitz, just back from the coast, attributes his defeat to an obstinate ankle injury suffered three months ago, and inasmuch as he has done 6 feet 8⅛ inches indoors and could not get past 6 feet 3 inches in the Olympics, his statement appears to be borne out by the figures. He says that every time he tried to put pressure on his foot in springing, it hurt so much that he just had to stop. Disappointment has not hurt Spitz's spirit, and he is already looking ahead to the next Olympics in 1936. "I'll be only 24 then and should be at my peak," he explains.

MILLER, DENNY ST. CLAIR ARE DEFEATED

By TOM BIRKS

Wilson (Billy) Marks, Princeton University ace, representing the Oakmont Country Club, and Maurice (Ski) LeBosquet, lanky star from the Highland Country Club, are battling it out over the South Hills Country Club layout this afternoon for the Western Pennsylvania amateur golf championship.

Marks, Eastern intercollegiate champion, shot brilliant golf to dethrone Denny St. Clair, of the Indiana Country Club, as champion in their semi-final round match this morning, and LeBosquet, who won the West Penn title at Westmoreland in 1928, put out Herb Miller, former Edgewood ace, now of Aliquippa, in the other semi-final duel.

TRIUMPHS DECISIVE

The triumphs of Mark and LeBosquet both were decisive, the former winning by 6 and 5, and LeBosquet carrying off a 5-and-4 decision.

Indications were that the final round duel would be an even battle. LeBosquet this season has been playing the brand of golf that brought him distinction as king of the amateurs of the disctitr four years ago, and Marks repeatedly has shown that he is capable of mastering the South Hills layout. He won the West Penn junior championship there about two weeks ago.

WINNERS NEVER DOWN

Neither Marks nor LeBosquet ever was down to his opponent in taking the semi-final hurdles. Billy was 4 up on the defending titleholder at the turn, and Ski held an advantage of 1 up over Miller as they stepped to the tenth tee. The cards of the semi-final round matches:

Outsider Captures Straight Heat Win

BUTLER, Pa., Aug. 19.—Eleanor Forbes, a bay mare owned by Todd Forbes, of Cleveland, provided an upset in the 2:12 trot here yesterday, defeating Peter Cochato and Albert Worth, heavy favorites. The Forbes horse won in straight heats.

An extra heat was necessary to decide the second division of the 2:24 trot when Agnes Guy, Peter Francis and The Frisco Pride each won heats. Peter Francis who trotted the first heat in 2:13½ came back in the extra heat to win first money.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: AN OLYMPIC FISHING CHAMPIONSHIP—After the modern revival of the ancient Olympic Games, the second Olympics were held in Paris, in 1900. This Olympic meet, which was entirely ignored by the local newspapers in Paris, was distinguished by the strange assortment of competitions which then were classified as "sports." Among the Olympic championships contested in 1900 we find such strange competitions as "Firemen's Drill," "Carrier-Pigeons' Flight," "Ballooning," etc. A Frenchman, whose name was not preserved for posterity, won an Olympic championship for angling for live fish in the river Seine. THE LENGTH OF A SHAVE—The beard area of a man's face is approximately 50 square inches. A daily shaver, therefore, covers an area of 365x50, or 18,250 square inches, equal to a strip ½-inch wide and considerably more than half-mile long, in one year's time.

TOMORROW: 11-FOOT WHISKERS.

U. S. ACES NEAR CASINO FINAL

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—The last of the foreign threats in the Newport Casino singles tennis tourney have been wiped out by one of America's tried veterans and the most improved low ranker of the season.

Most of the credit, however, must be given to the low ranker, Dave Jones, of New York. This converted Columbia basketball player eliminated Frederick J. Perry, of England, yesterday, who, a year ago, was good enough to get into the Casino finale, where he was trounced by Ellsworth Vines, national champion.

Jones is a slam-bang tenniser and his aggressive methods provides the court game with a much needed touch. By giving himself fight talks, most of which were overheard by an appreciative gallery, he pulled himself together at the crucial points and forced Perry out of the competition with as pretty a display of hard driving the tennis public has witnessed in many years. The score was 6-4, 1-6, 6-3, 2-6, 6-4.

Wilmer Allison, the Texan Davis Cup veteran, eliminated the other foreigner, Jiro Satoh, Japan's outstanding player, in a five-setter, 1-6, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2, 6-4, to go into the semi-finals against Gregory Mangin, of Newark, N. J.

Mangin pulled into a two-set lead against steady Jack Tidball, of Los Angeles, but was unable to hold the advantage and soon the Californian was at match point in the twelfth game of the fifth set. Mangin finally won the deciding set at 9-7. The scores were 6-4, 6-0, 4-6, 12-14, 9-7.

Highland Country Club golfer who is meeting Wilson Marks for the West Penn amateur championship at South Hills this afternoon. LeBosquet defeated Herbert Miller in the semi-finals this morning, 5 and 4, while Marks eliminated Denny St. Clair, defending champion, 6 and 5. LeBosquet is a former West Penn amateur champion. LACHANCE DEAD

WATERBURY, Conn., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—George (Candy) Lachance, 53, first baseman of the 1903 world championship Boston Red Sox team, died here last night after a year's illness. He started his major league career with Brooklyn and finished it at Boston in 1904. Later he played with Montreal and Providence in the old International League, and Waterbury and New Haven in the Connecticut League.

CHAMP LEADS AT SCHENLEY

Mrs. Margaret Curry, medalist and defending champion, was leading Miss Edith Clark, 1 up, at the finish of the morning round of 18 holes in their 36-hole final round match for the city women's golf championship at the Schenley Park municipal links today.

The second half of the championship duel is being played this afternoon.

Both finalists appeared to be under great nervous tension, and the golf displayed was far from championship caliber. Mrs. Curry scored in the low 70s in winning the medal and disposing of her rivals in the early rounds, and Miss Clark's game was almost equally good in the earlier rounds, but in the final today Mrs. Curry had a ragged 81 and Miss Clark a poor 84 for the first 18 holes.

Although she required 43 strokes to reach the turn, Mrs. Curry was 1 up at that point, and her 38 in did not enable her to add to her advantage. Miss Clark was 1 up after 16 holes, but a 5 on the seventeenth and a 7 on the eighteenth resulted in her losing both holes. The cards for the morning round:

Out—
Mrs. Curry	4	6	6	6	3	4	3	5	6	—43
Miss Clark	5	5	6	7	3	4	4	4	6	—44
In—
Mrs. Curry	4	4	4	6	4	3	5	4	4	—38—81
Miss Clark	5	3	4	5	3	4	4	5	7	—40—84

Miss C. Ruch defeated Miss Maxine Cuden, 3 and 2, in the second flight final, and Mrs. Long was leading Mrs. Wagner, 2 up, after 18 holes of their 36-hole final in the first flight consolation final. Mrs. Arnold defeated Mrs. Frisz, 3 and 2, in the second flight consolation final.

The team and individual championships of the County Parks will be decided today over the South Park links.

In the second division, Mrs. Stanton and W. H. Frank led with a 92-21—71.

The annual women's invitation tournament at Wildwood Country Club is being staged there today. Nelson Zimmerman, the club professional, expects to start 200 fair links stars from the initial tee.

HOLM RELEASED

PIRATES FACE NEW GROUP OF SOUTHPAWS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Bill Terry led his vengeful Giants into our midst today. Cleaning up on the Reds in Cincy, the New Yorkers feel they have a bone to pick with our Pirates in a six-game series slated to get underway this afternoon with a single contest.

Terry and his players still are smarting from a recent Pirate frolic at the Polo Grounds. It's been only a few weeks since the Pirates toppled the New Yorkers six times in four days in the Vale of Coogan's Bluff, so the Giants naturally are a bit peeved. And their feelings are not assuaged when they realize they have lost 10 out of 13 games to the Buccos.

HUBBELL TO PITCH

In line with the custom of other managers, Terry probably has his lefthanders primed for slab action in Pittsburgh. Southpaws have been largely instrumental in pulling the Freebooters from a comfortable position on top to a less pretentious notch. The Buccos are now in second place and they must win today to assure themselves possession of the runnerup position over the fast-going Dodgers.

The Buccos expect to look at the crooked slants of Carl Hubbell in the opener. Heinie Meine, who was slated to work in the washed-out game of yesterday, will retain the slab slip for the home team.

Showers caused a postponement of the scheduled Dodger-Pirate game of yesterday. As the Brooklyn club has finished in Pittsburgh for the year, the game will be transferred to Ebbets Field. The Rovers are due to play in Brooklyn right after Labor Day.

BUCS LOSE GROUND

While they were idle yesterday the Pirates suffered a further loss of ground to Charley Grimm's sensational Cubs. The feat achieved by the Bruins in the past three days stands out as one of the rare developments of the hot National League campaign. The achievement of the Pirates in winning six out of seven from the Giants recently had no greater thrill than the three running triumphs of Grimm's Hustlers. The Cubs now lead the Buccos by two and one-half games.

The Pirates and Giants will stage a doubleheader tomorrow. Another twin bill is listed for Monday, with the home team carded for a game in Cincinnati Sunday.

CHILLYSAUCE

In using the Braves as a ladder, the scrappy Cubs may have knocked the Tribe out of a first-division berth, although the Boston fighters have plenty of time in which to fight their way back to the upper tier. The Braves, nevertheless, will hardly be regarded as flag contenders from here on in.

Charley Grimm is experiencing more joyful thrills than any manager in the sport and coming as they are at the start of Lefty's career they surely must carry an unusual glow.

The decline of the Braves, by the way, has pushed them down to a point within one and one-half games from seventh place. It seems only a couple of days back they were contesting the right of the Pirates to occupy the first position. What a race!

West View Day Meet Tomorrow

West View Day will be observed at West View Park tomorrow afternoon when the West View Relief Committee will sponsor a sports meet to raise funds for its relief fund.

Track events, canoe and swimming races, competitions for fire companies and a baseball game are on the program.

Nick Altrock Baseball's Humorist Says:

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—I said to Griff today:

Griff said, "They expected Hoover to bunt and he lammed out a homer."

I said, "I think he gave the drys a squeeze play."

Nick Altrock

I said, "What effect will this have on baseball?"

Griff said, "It will make the Anti-Salooners a minor league."

I said, "Will there be any dry states in the American League circuit?"

Griff said, "Not unless they sell the St. Louis franchise to Topeka."

I said, "But isn't Cleveland liable to be dry?"

Griff said, "Listen, Bootleggers are doing such a rushing business in Cleveland, they are cutting their stuff with Lake Erie."

CUBS STRETCH LEAD WITH SECOND MARATHON VICTORY

PHILLIES TOP CARDS TWICE; GIANTS COP

Associated Press.

No matter who may win the National League pennant, the Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves seem to have clinched the marathon championship beyond a doubt.

They've just completed a three-game series and the Cubs have had to travel 43 innings—the equivalent of almost five ordinary contests—to win three one-run decisions.

Charley Grimm's outfit scored four runs in the ninth to win the first game, 4-3, Tuesday, and Wednesday the clubs battled through 19 innings before the Cubs won, 3-2.

CUBS BOOST LEAD

Taking up right where they had left off, they fought through another extra-inning thriller yesterday until Riggs Stephenson broke up the ball game in the fifteenth with a single that gave the Cubs a 4-to-3 triumph and stretched their league lead to 2½ games over the idle Pittsburgh Pirates.

Huck Betts, always tough for the Cubs to solve, pitched the first 14 innings before going out for a pinch batsman. The Cubs soon hopped on Socks Siebold for the winning run. Elwood English started with a single and on Cuyler's attempted sacrifice Al Spohrer tossed the ball wild and English reached third and Cuyler second. Stephenson's game-winning hit followed. Guy Bush pitched the last frame for the Cubs and received credit for his second victory in as many days.

The Phillies turned back the St. Louis Cardinals in both ends of a doubleheader, 10-4 and 9-4. The Phils uncoked one five-run rally off Dizzy Dean in the third frame of the opener and another off Paul Derringer in the sixth. They won the second game with another five-run rally off Stout and Carleton in the fifth inning.

GIANTS BEAT REDS

The New York Giants made it four in a row from Cincinnati 7-3. Waite Hoyt held the Reds in subjection until the eighth, when he lost control and had to be relieved by Luque.

The only American League game of the day was a spectacular struggle between the Boston Red Sox and St. Louis Browns, which the former won, 7-6, in 15 innings. George Stumpf, rookie outfielder, tripled in that frame and scored on Hal Rhyne's long fly. In the fourteenth the Browns apparently won the game with a three-run rally, but the battling Red Sox tied it up in their half once more.

Mrs. Artzberger Loses In Parks Tourney

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Aug. 19.—(AP.)—The national public parks tennis championships reached the semi-final round in women's singles and men's and women's doubles yesterday and the quarter-final round in men's singles.

Helen Germaine, New York, will meet Ruth Martinez, Washington, and Virginia Dueker, St. Louis, will play Mary Mustaikis, Detroit, tomorrow in the women's singles semi-finals.

By JAMES MILLER

Mose Butch, the little Italian southpaw from Oakland, today anxiously is awaiting word that Al Brown, Negro holder of the bantamweight crown, is to be brought here as his next opponent, as a result of his second win over Wee Willie Davies, of Charleroi, in the 10-round main bout at Greenlee Field last night. Butch was promised a bout with the champion if he beat Davies.

BUTCH TOO STRONG

Butch was credited with winning the first, fifth, sixth, eighth and ninth rounds, Davies the second and the last, with three heats even.

Davies, far from the boxer he was a few years ago, seemed to lack the necessary strength to ward off Butch's bulldog attack, and was forced to crouch, hold and tincan through most of the fight. The sharp left jab that Willie had not so long ago also was missing.

Although he missed plenty of punches that went sailing over Davies' head, Butch forced the fighting and did all the cleaner and harder hitting. In the fifth round Mose belted a solid left hook to Davies' midsection that forced Willie to hold on, and in the sixth a sweeping left drew blood from Willie's mouth.

Davies outmaneuvered Butch to win the last round. The decision was unanimous. Davies weighed 119 pounds, while Butch had to take off a pound to weigh 120½.

WILSON BEATS LITFIN

Jackie Wilson, Negro, of Homewood, won a hard-fought battle from Nat Litfin, of the Hill, in the eight-round semi-final. Litfin was handicapped by a badly swollen left eye for six rounds, and as he favored the bruised optic, Wilson boxed his way to victory. Both lads came in at 122¼ pounds.

In the second bout, Joey Speigal, Uniontown southpaw, fought a great fight with Jacquette Everillo, of the Hill, after being on the floor for a nine count in the fourth round, winning the last two frames handily, but could not garner enough points to offset Everillo's early lead, and lost a close decision. It was a straight right to the chin that dropped Speigal in the fourth.

Fighting for the first time in five months, Al Becker, of Sheraden, shaded Jimmy Vaughn, of Johnstown, in the opening bout. Becker staged a rally in the last half of the fight to win the nod.

Between Rounds

Battling Gizzy, who last Monday night defeated Charley Hasler at Hickey Park, was notified by the State Athletic Commission that he was suspended for 30 days for failing to obey the orders of the referee in the fight. Al Bunseri and Tommy Grigsan, two boys who made their pro debut on the same card, also were set down for the same length of time for the same reason.

Arthur DeKuh and Seal Harris, heavyweights, who walked through 10 rounds at Greenlee Field last week, were suspended indefinitely for unsatisfactory services. The most drastic measure was taken in the case of Jackie Rodgers, local Negro pugilist whose license was revoked because of his failure to pass a physical examination. Rodgers plans to enter a hospital shortly to have a cataract removed from his left eye. All suspensions came out of the weekly meeting of the commission at Philadelphia on Wednesday.

Lew Raymond, who made matches at the Meyers Rest this summer, and Willis Britt, two smart heads in the boxing game, will be in George Punka's corner Monday night at Hickey Park, when he meets Frank Novak for the heavyweight title of the city. Punka, according to Britt, who is supervising his training, is in great shape for the bout.

John Herron, promoter at the Millvale Club, announces that he has signed Ted Yarosz to a contract for the night of August 29 and is looking around for a good opponent for the Monaca star.

Now that Gizzy is suspended, he will try to forget his troubles by taking a vacation in Canada next week. He was promised this by his manager, Abie Witz, if he won over Baxter. He won the bout and is packing his grip for trip.

EZRA PACE WINNER

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 19.—In the second day's racing program at the Jackstown Fair, Ezra, owned by Mrs. Frank Ray, of McConnellsville, O., won the free-for-all pace in straight heats. In the 2:08 trot, Arthur Harvester, owned by Lester Anderson, of Wellsville, W. Va., captured two out of three heats to win the race.

Women Net Stars Resume Play Today

Prior to this spectacular struggle, Helen Jacobs, the prime favorite, advanced to the semi-final round after a gruelling battle against Majorie Gladman Van Ryn, 2-6, 6-3, 6-1.

TRADING DULL AS STOCKS DECLINE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(AP.) — The stock market made a brave start today, but soon lapsed into a weary, zig-zag movement.

Stocks still seemed to be tied to wheat, and when that market sagged, shares eased off as well. An opening burst of buying carried many of the leaders up 1 to 2 points. These gains were soon lost, and in the late morning, bullish efforts in some of the specialties failed to inject new life. Several of the principal issues were off 1 to 2 points, net, by the fourth hour, with trading very dull.

The market obtained only temporary stimulus from the overnight announcement of the formation of the Commodities Credit Corporation. Possibly the announcement was a little disappointing to some brokerage quarters that had been talking enthusiastically of "commodity pools." The weekly mercantile reviews again spoke optimistically of developments in general trade conditions, pointing to further gains in wholesaling, and increased activity in manufacturing in such lines as textiles and shoes. They failed to shed any particularly new light on the situation, however.

Kansas City Southern was, as usual, one of the first of the Class 1 roads to report for July, and its net operating income of $61,651 was a little less than the report for June, but somewhat better than the average for May, April and March. Interests sponsoring the recent advances in the carrier issues, however, acknowledge that no important improvement will be seen in the July statements. They are looking for improvement during the autumn months. Yesterday's meeting of rail chiefs in Chicago to discuss wages merely brought a brief statement that the subject had been discussed and another meeting would be called later.

GRAIN VALUES TURN WEAK

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Lower prices for grains early today resulted largely from indications that the newly formed Commodity Finance Corporation would not buy big quantities of any commodity. Refusal of the Liverpool wheat market to follow advances yesterday on this side of the Atlantic was also a bearish influence. Opening unchanged to ⅝ off, wheat later declined all around. Corn started unchanged to ⅜ down and subsequently showed a general setback.

Wheat bears expressed doubt that the new commodity pool would help wheat upward. A little enlargement of speculative purchasing of wheat followed late upturns in Liverpool quotations, but rallies here failed to hold well. Corn and oats sold off with wheat.

Forbes

This Suggests Spending Has Been Resumed

By B. C. FORBES

PEOPLE APPARENTLY are beginning to spend money.

Mr. Forbes

One reader writes: "Going to a resort, I expected to find the hotel quiet. To my surprise—as well as to the surprise of the hotel owners—more hundreds of visitors arrived than could be accommodated. At the George Gershwin concert at the Lewisohn Stadium in New York, the crowd broke all records. The newspapers declared that 17,000 paid 25 cents to $1 for admission and that 4,000 had to be turned away."

Complaints multiply, at least in New York, that retailers' stocks are embarrassingly incomplete. The last place I entered couldn't supply what I wanted to buy.

Latest weekly railway reports reveal that traffic on at least some lines has begun to expand. This is new news, perhaps very significant news.

PRESIDENT MERRICK, of Westinghouse, states:

"Evidences of recuperation are becoming increasingly apparent. People are now no longer feeling that the worst is yet to come."

Commodities, though mildly irregular, are holding most of their recent gains, and the much-discussed banking plan to finance commodity and material purchases by manufacturers, though overrated, may exercise further stimulating effect.

DECLARATION OF the regular 9 per cent American Telephone dividend has made 712,000 stockholders happy—and will give them $41,990,000 cash to spend.

OCCASIONAL RECESSIONS in securities are normal and healthy. Long sustained, unchecked advances always excite suspicion. Therefore, recent reactions and recoveries are regarded as salutary.

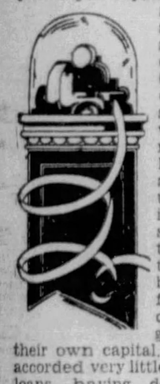
Loan Decrease Indicates Brokers Are Financing Margin Trades

In view of talk in brokerage circles of a steadily broadening public participation in the stock market, Wall street was rather surprised by the decrease of $1,000,000 in brokers' loans, as shown in the weekly federal reserve figures. In the absence of anything to clear up the apparent inconsistency the street is holding to its previous theory that the brokers are financing a good deal of the marginal buying with their own capital. Statistics were accorded very little attention. With loans having declined steadily through the early stages of the current rise the natural inference was that stocks were reflecting buying on a cash basis. The previous week's report brought the first expansion of any consequence. $13,000,000, in brokers' borrowings in about two months.



Bull forces found little to enthuse over in the sales figures of Sears, Roebuck & Co., for the four weeks ended August 13. The indicated drop of 27.4 per cent by comparison with last year is one of the sharpest yet reported, and substantially heavier than the average for the year indicated in the figures for 32 weeks ended August 13 at 21.9 per cent. Lower catalog prices now as compared with last year are a factor, but as the head of the company points out, declines in prices of manufactured goods and finished products, has been far more rapid than at any time in two years, and unquestionably was an influence.

Rail shares are seemingly bullwarked by report current that the carriers are prepared to seek a wage cut this time not through negotiation with union forces but through recourse to procedure set up by the railroad labor act. The story going the rounds had it that plans have been fixed for the service of notice on organized rail labor of such intentions of September 1. The report was received with no little credence in view of the fact that carrier executives have been in session recently for the purpose of discussing the wage question.

Dribbling selling for foreign account has been reported in evidence at intervals since the middle of last week, but no really significant flood of offerings from that source has as yet been witnessed. Some of those well-informed, however, are of the opinion that London has been more active on the selling side in the last day or two. Such a development would not, it is contended, prove surprising, inasmuch as the British were early participants on the buying side when the rise got under way.

The record action of the market suggests that while its disposition to back away from the highs of the move on each approach has tended to slow down bullish initiative, it has not thus far tended to create any great masure of concern among the speculative element. The check to the rise, however, has according to brokers, brought a contraction in public interest. The public, it is declared, is seldom a buyer in any volume on reactions, but rather still seems to make its entry when the market is definitely in an advancing phase.

The weekly bank statements showed that the Federal Reserve System had again halted its open market pumping out of credit through buying of governments and bills. In this connection, it was explained in important banking quarters, that the reserve officials felt that the purpose of the open market policy, the checking of needless deflation had been accomplished, at least for the moment.

TRADE CHIEFS FAVOR TAX ON SALES

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Since Congress adjourned there has been a discernible drift of informed opinion toward the sales tax.

The success of the experiment in Mississippi with the consumers' sales tax has helped to galvanize this movement, which received a stimulus from the indorsement of the sales tax by former President Coolidge in his magazine article and by H. I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, in his recent nation-wide radio broadcast.

Mr. Rukeyser

Several outstanding industrialists have told me recently that they consider the sales tax essential to putting the tax system on a scientific basis, and relieving productive industry of a great burden.

F. W. Foote, president First National Bank of Hattiesburg, Miss., and an active leader in the American Bankers' Association, in commenting on the philosophy of the sales tax, said, in a message to this column:

"The retail sales tax enacted by the Mississippi Legislature at its last session will prove all that the Governor, who sponsored it, claimed for it. There was much opposition to the tax, and it was difficult of enactment, but now that the people are paying the tax, all classes appear to have accepted it and I do not now hear any opposition expressed against it. I do hear of many converts to it, and I am positive it will prove to be a popular measure.

"There never was a time when government did so much for the people and when the masses received so much benefit from public treasuries. It was a mistake to have permitted such extensive development of government activities in states, counties, municipalities, and districts without having first taken into consideration the utter impossibility of continuing such extravagant public policies with no means of support except the partially out of date system of ad valorem taxation (on real estate).

"The percentage who pay ad valorem taxes is low in every state, which makes the principle of the same importance for all. Fair distribution of the cost of government among all who consume government cannot fail in the end to prove profitable to every class, as government so supported will encourage the largest co-operation and build the strongest spirit of security and expectancy. Therefore, the largest prosperity must follow."

BLONDIE OF THE FOLLIES

From Which M. G. M. Has Made

CHAPTER XXIII.

Blondie entered the speakeasy, then stopped suddenly as she surveyed the scene. Larry was there with Pratt and several other men, all laughing and singing. Lurline, with a glass in her hand, was standing near Larry, looking up at him. She had been crying. Blondie started to retreat just as Larry caught sight of her. He hurriedly left the group and followed her into the anteroom.

"Hello, funny face!" he said, smiling broadly.

"I popped over to—to . . ."

"To wish me luck—I'm sailing tonight."

"To wish you everything!" Blondie replied, quietly serious.

There was silence for a moment as Larry looked at her longingly.

"Remember the first time we saw that thing together."

"I'll never forget it!"

"You know—you won't believe me—but I was really in love that night . . ."

"I don't think you'd say that—if you don't mean it—there wouldn't be any reason for saying it now, would there?"

"Not now—no!"

OFFERS TO STAY

"Yes—I am," said Larry, looking her straight in the eye.

"I'm so glad!" Blondie said, sincerely.

"Sweet kid!"

"Mister yourself!" and Larry suddenly pulled her toward him, putting his arms around her. Then, with his face close to hers, he said quickly:

"Say the word and I won't go—say it—I mean it—I love you—you know I love you—I always have!"

"I know I do, but . . .", Blondie whispered.

"There's no one but—I'll stay—I won't go . . . I wanted to come to you last week before . . ."

"You mustn't . . . You're engaged!—What about her?" and Blondie gently pushed him away.

Larry stopped trying to pull himself together. "Yes—I guess you're right!" he said. Then, as she moved toward the outside door, Larry suddenly kicked the door leading to the speakeasy, and grabbed her in his arms again.

RETURNS TO THEATER

"We've never really been free . . . first it was Lurline . . . and now it's this other one . . ."

"It's too late anyhow . . . I'm not the one for you, now . . . It might have been—before—before . . . " and Blondie's voice broke pitifully. "Goodbye, Larry!" she said, through her tears.

Lurline burst into the room and quickly sizing up the situation, called: "Come on, Blondie—we're on—quick—so long, Larry—come on, you," and she pushed Blondie out ahead of her.

They went along the fire escape, into the theater and down on the stage without a word. The dawn scene, just preceding the ballet, was on and the girls started for the wings to catch their cue.

O'Brien, the stage manager, approached, scowling darkly. "You're fired—both of you . . . you're through tonight," he ordered.

"I warned you!" snarled O'Brien, hurrying away.

Lurline looked at Blondie, who was nearly in tears. You . . . !"

"What?" asked Blondie savagely.

"Oh, don't talk to me—you'd sneak him now if you could."

"Not if I know it . . ." Blondie started to come back, but Lurline had run on the stage, her little pearl bead dress rattling metalically.

The ballet, the big scene of the Follies, was laid in the Palace de Concord, and the opening showed people returning from the Quatz Arts ball. A huge fountain occupied the center of the massive stage, water spouting up and tumbling down into the basin as varied colored lights played across the scene.

Lurline dashed out, the center of a specialty number, with other girls in the fountain. As that act finished Blondie came on with the Locke twins to do a special dance routine.

Blondie looked exceptionally beautiful tonight, her scant but colorful costume displaying her trim little figure that moved with lightning speed. The Locke twins sensed that Blondie was giving herself completely to the dance, and they worked harder, entering in the spirit of the number which always brought down the house.

LURLINE ANGRY

In the grand finale of the ballet the hundred students joined hands and danced in a huge circle around the fountain with its immense statue. On one side Blondie joined hands with Lurline, on the other with Paul Locke.

"You're all wet," came back Blondie, as the tempo of the music increased and the great circle speeded up. "I—don't—care—what—you—think!"

"I'll . . . get . . . even . . . with . . . you!" snarled Lurline, the speed of the dance making her words come haltingly. As she said it Blondie could feel the fingernails biting into her wrist.

"You're . . . wrong . . . about . . . him!" The whirling speed was now so great that Blondie could hardly talk. Lurline's answer was another jab of her fingernails. Blondie almost cried out in pain. Blood was oozing from the clinched hands of the girls.

They were entering the final round of the dance. The speed was furious now. To maintain their balance the dancers were dependent upon the grips with their partners' hands. Faster, still faster they went, their toes barely touching the floor, the legs crossing and recrossing each other with lightning-like rapidity.

Suddenly she pulled her hand free. The ring had broken. Blondie was on the end of the line, like the cracker on a whip. She flew into the air with terrific speed. The grip on her other hand broke. As though shot from a gun she catapulted across the footlights and fell into the orchestra pit.

There was a mighty scream from the audience. A musician leaped high in the air. On the stage girls went tumbling head over heels. The curtain came down with a thud.

"Keep the show going!" shouted O'Brien.

The orchestra leader tried to get his men back to their instruments. The audience, now on its feet, strained to look down at the pitifully crumpled Blondie. She was huddled in a mass at the bottom of the pit.

The little trap door used by the musicians to enter the pit opened quickly. Gentle hands picked up the little body, pulled it through the door and carried it up on the stage. But before they reached it the orchestra was playing full blast. Another set was working desperately on the stage.

The show must go on!

Hazel Livingston freely attributes her success in writing stories to the glimpses of their lives that correspondents to her daily newspaper column have given her. In fact, the idea of writing novels grew out of her handling these letters. She had never thought of writing before, although she had been and still is an avid reader of great and light fiction.

Her readers—and she counts them by the thousands—disagree about many things concerning "Valentine," her latest work, which begins in the Sun-Telegraph next Monday, but they all agree on one thing—that it is a great story.

There was silence as he looked at her longingly.

Heart of a Wife

Deception Is Continued by the Women

Lillian's eyebrows smoothed themselves to a straight line again, and her lips quirked into a relieved smile as I told her that a word to the sapient head mistress of Whitney Hall would suffice to bar Charles Owen's access to Marion should he come down to the school.

"That's true," she acknowledged. "I'll back that lady against anybody. "But," the worried look came into her eyes again, "suppose this—this—apparent attraction for Owen on Marion's part is stronger than we think—what then?"

"You've just used the right words," I told her, with a nonchalance I was far from feeling. "Apparent attraction," that's just it, there is nothing real about it. Let Mary get in a few more plays like the one last night, supplement her work by pretended opposition, and the game is won. Marion will give him his dismissal herself, I am sure of it."

'Hello, there!" Mary's voice sounded from the door, and we turned to see her, trim and tremendously attractive in sleeveless white tennis frock and "sneaks," her dark hair bound with a filet of scarlet. "Has anybody seen Ronald?"

"You mean he's getting up this early, also?"

"I don't blame you for being astonished, considering the usual hour of arising pulled by the younger generation of this family, especially after a party. . . Just some orange juice and a cracker, Katie," she broke off to say. "I'm going to play tennis, and I'll have breakfast afterward if you don't mind."

"You shoost starve to death," Katie uttered her time-honored but futile warning, and went back to the kitchen, while Mary looked at her wrist watch, frowning.

TENNIS MATCH

She cocked her head toward the ceiling, and we, listening with her, agreed that there were cautious movements in the room above, which Bill and Hank had given over to the "collegiate sheiks," as they bitterly dubbed Ronald and Bob Trevellan.

"I suppose he's trying not to waken Bob," she said, "although from all I've heard of that lad, Gabriel's trumpet won't phase him."

"What's the big idea, Mary?" I guessed that there was more friendliness in Lillian's voice and eyes than Mary had seen there since Lillian's arrival at the Brixton camp.

"An early tennis match with Roland. I hope heaven will forgive me for dragging the poor fish out of bed at this hour. But I don't believe he's sleeping very soundly at that, and the exercise will be good for his present state of mind. And the contemplation of it will be mighty good for Marion. It's usually she who dabbles at tennis with Ronald in the mornings. I took particular pains that she should hear him ask me for a match after I'd painfully prodded him into proposing it."

"You think the scheme is working, then?" I asked.

"Is it working?" Mary's outspread hands and arched eyebrows emphasized her words. "As far as Marion is concerned, the yeast is fermenting like nobody's bread sponge. If I only can get Ronald to play up artistically. But his heart's not in his role."

DISAGREEABLE WORK

"It's an almost impossible role for a sensitive lad to play," I said, wishing that I could have seen any other possibility for bringing Marion to her senses.

"I hate it all," Lillian said abruptly. "But I suppose it's the only thing to do. When do you think I ought to begin the pogrom on Ronald, and the subtle boosting of Owen?"

Lillian laughed, a bit consciously.

"As long as the welcome sign is on the doormat, I imagine. That is, they would under normal conditions. Ronald now will probably get restive, but Bob's abiding place is wherever he's having a good time—and—just at present—Carolyn spells that for him."

"She'll stay," Mary said confidently.

"Then I would advise delaying the 'pogrom' for a day or two until we can plan out an effective beginning," I said. "In the meantime"—I gestured toward the room above us from which came the sound of a closing door—"suppose we save the lad embarrassment, Lillian, by having the rest of our breakfast on the side veranda."

A Hollow Victory

The crooked public utilities companies, whose relations with the Public Service Commission are to be investigated by the State Senate, have scored a victory in the appointment of the investigating committee.

It is composed of men who are subservient for the most part to the state Republican organization, and headed by Senator Rial, of Westmoreland County, who soon goes out of office, having been repudiated by his constituents.

In the struggle between the people of Pennsylvania and the public utilities for fair rates the Republican organization has been on the side of the utilities.

The personnel of the committee is virtually the same as that of the committee to whom was referred Gov. Pinchot's charge that W. D. B. Ainey, while chairman of the Public Service Commission, permitted the president of the Equitable Gas Company of Pittsburgh to pay an expensive hospital bill for him, notwithstanding that a suit brought by the City of Pittsburgh against the company for lower gas rates was pending before the commission at the time.

The committee was plainly reluctant to investigate the charge, and was glad to seize upon Ainey's resignation as excuse for letting the matter drop.

Having shirked its duty then, there is no reason to suppose the committee will do its duty now.

Everything points to a "whitewash," and Gov. Pinchot hardly can be blamed if he attempts to save the taxpayers' money by vetoing the proposed appropriation of $100,000 to pay for the inquiry.

The utilities, in this preliminary skirmishing, have triumphed. But it is only a temporary triumph, only a hollow victory.

The day of reckoning is merely postponed, and the demand for public ownership of the utilities strengthened.

Housing Bills Lost

The Senate Must Bear the Odium for the Defeat of Measures Which Would Have Eliminated Slums.

The program agreed upon by legislative leaders and Gov. Pinchot for the special session called for the enactment of laws permitting limited dividend corporations to do away with the slums of the great cities and erect in their stead comfortable, sanitary dwellings for people of modest means. Money for the purpose was to have been made available by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

This important legislation, which had the cordial support of many organizations, including the Pittsburgh Housing Association and Pittsburgh Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, has failed of passage. The odium for its death must be borne by the Senate.

It was provided in the original bills that the housing corporations should have recourse to the right of eminent domain to condemn slum property if it should be impossible otherwise to obtain it at a reasonable price. The purpose was to prevent an owner of such property from demanding an extortionate figure and thus hampering the housing companies in their humanitarian work. New York has legislation with such a provision, but it has never been necessary to invoke it.

The House agreed to the right of eminent domain, but the Senate struck it out, and it was on this point that the bills were killed.

According to Gov. Pinchot, certain real estate speculators bought, or attempted to buy, key lots in slum areas of Philadelphia to hold for "tremendous profits" if the bills passed with the eminent domain provision eliminated, and were abetted in the plot by the Senate.

However that may be, the defeat of the legislation, which, according to civic and welfare workers, would have done much to improve the condition of poor people in Pennsylvania's large cities, is lamentable.

Trade Outlook Improves

There Is Encouragement in the Statements of the Presidents of Two Big Companies.

Those who require something more than the recent vigorous rise in security prices on the New York Stock Exchange to persuade them that the business outlook has improved may find it in statements made this week by the presidents of two of Pittsburgh's biggest companies.

Howard Heinz, president of the H. J. Heinz Company, told managers of the company's sales branches and warehouses, gathered here for conference, that the advance in prices of important commodities, including butter, eggs, beans, grains, hogs, cattle, oil, cotton and sugar was "most encouraging." He said, too, "there is some evidence that business organizations are more disposed to make slightly forward purchases of raw materials now than in the recent past, because they believe the course of prices in many commodity markets will be upward."

F. A. Merrick, president of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, called attention yesterday to "noteworthy items of betterment in the European situation and substantial contributions to stability in this country." "People," he said, "are now no longer fearing that the worst is yet to come."

The optimistic statements made in 1930 have been shown up as so ridiculous in the light of subsequent events that industrial leaders have been chary of late of hazarding predictions which might also prove to be without warrant. The fact that two such leaders as Heinz and Merrick should now boldly voice their belief that good times are returning is therefore more than usually significant.

The Legion's Demands

The Veterans Are Asking Nothing Unreasonable in Calling for Beer and the Bonus.

The gayety that the state convention of the American Legion has brought to Pittsburgh is conspicuous and refreshing. The city has gone into gala array in honor of the veterans and there is a spirit of enthusiasm which has not been much in evidence of late.

It may be, as former Gov. John S. Fisher said, in addressing the Legion yesterday, that the presence of the Legionnaires has served to give us courage to face our problems boldly.

There is something inspiring in the forthright way in which the Legionnaires face their problems and present their views. There is no pussyfooting, no straddling. The delegates know what they want and do not hesitate to state plainly what it is.

They want beer and the immediate payment of the bonus. These are reasonable demands, and have received the support of the Sun-Telegraph and the other Hearst newspapers.

A Pet Becomes a Pest

(Copyright, 1932.)

It has killed off foreign trade with its discriminatory provisions against the merchandise of other nations breeding resentment against American products all over the globe and all but destroying American commerce.

It has closed American factories and increased the ranks of the unemployed. Its baneful influence has been felt in every section by every class.

The next Congress would do well to revise the tariff in the light of reciprocal trade relations with other nations, for RECIPROCITY IS THE KEY TO FOREIGN TRADE.

Marry-Go-Round

The Average Man

* * *

Of course, a man likes to have a woman think him "big and strong and capable"—but not SO strong and capable that he can run the lawnmower and do all the odd jobs around the house on his Saturday afternoon off.

* * *

What no man can believe is that there really ARE girls who actually would prefer sitting at home with a witty, fascinating book, to going out to dine with a dull, boresome man. But that is one of those sweet, masculine illusions that keep men so bright and cheerful.

The American husband is still the most satisfactory husband in the world, even if he does talk stocks, bonds or politics when he might be holding your hand and whispering tender nothings. He is the only husband in the world who will stand for back-seat driving, back talk and delicatessen dinners.

* * *

The average man does not fall for an "angel-with-wings;" he is much more apt to weaken before some clever little devil, who knows how to persuade him that she needs only a big, strong man to change her horns to a halo.

* * *

An ordinary looking-glass, like the usual husband, has no heart when it comes to telling a woman the brutal truth. That's why the beauty-parlor mirror and the woman-chaser, who soften the blow, get in so much fine work.

The moon has its charms; but, like romantic love, it lasts such a little while! Whereas a good, old, practical electric lamp, like a good, old, solid affection, never fails you.

* * *

The modern girl's "ideal man," according to a popular writer, is one who can rub a couple of dollars together and make them come out as twenty-dollar bills. But, why do men like that kind of a girl?

What a Friend Says

This is what a friend says
When a hope has gone:
"Better day tomorrow!
"Darkest before dawn!
"Gird yourself with courage;
"Arm yourself with trust;
"You are proud in spirit,
"Conquer, as you must!"

This is what a friend says:
"Words, I know, are poor;
"But my love is constant.
"And my faith is sure,
"You will be the victor
"Always, in the end.
"Promise to keep trying.

Friends can give fresh strength, the Bitter drink to quaff;

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—Thoughts while strolling: The Mammy song all of a sudden goes Mom. One word description of Genevieve Tobin—posey. Whatever became of the vaudevillian, Artie Mehlinger? Those jungle-like peepings from subway gratings. Nobody can grin like George Olsen.

Earl Carroll's ruddy brother, Jim. And his big cheroot. When I pass the Claridge corner, I think of Tommy Gray. He passed Marcus Loew and Lee Shubert there one morning and flipped: "Hi Lee, Hi Loew!" Stanley Rinehart, a Pittsburgh (Pa.) boy, who made good in the city. Frank Lawlor is a miniature Victor Moore.

What we once called a "brat" is now a "modern child." I've often wished at parties I could jump up and do Pat Rooney's dance. Jesse Lasky's glasses always seem about to fall off. There appears to be a panic in "It," also. Or is it my years? Heywood Broun's Haw-vahd accent.

Mary Boland is remindful of a flushed apple tree in Normandy. Doesn't seem right for Blanche Ring and Charles Winninger to be apart. There he goes—nibbing in. Dennis King has a romantic swagger off stage, too. It's a convenient alibi—all the big financiers playing broke. But what hooey!

Overheard: "And now winter. So what?" Dulleyed sandwich men—caught in life's undertow. But they have company. Eva La Gallienne is a statue in chalk. They say theatrical people sprinkle salt in letters for good luck. Roger Wolfe Kahn eating in an albino-tiled restaurant.

For some reason, I miss those brisk fellows who used to try to sell us lots in the Ozone Parks and Fairview Manors. I want to say "hey, hey!" after Edna St. Vincent Millay. They've sent me a monkey, two horned toads, and a Siamese cat, so far this year. Any day now, I'm expecting a pet bison.

Harry Evans, who brought thoughtful consideration to movie criticism, recently compiled a list of steady-going performers on the screen who, never meteoric, are always dependable. They play crooks, waiters, chauffeurs, butlers, maids and sewing women, and, like the great common people, are the backbone of enterprise. The best, I think, is the omniscient Lewis Stone.

* * *

I never got around to seeing Warner Baxter on the screen until a recent night. It was one of those syrupy scenarios splattered with a few bladder swats, but I came away feeling a finished artist was again neck-deep in Hollywood piffle. Remind me to do something about the talkies!

* * *

The Ringling circus started off the season by running up biggest receipts ever in New York. On tour, with minor exceptions, they kept up this pace. The phenomenon in depression times is history repeating itself. In decadent Rome, when everything went blooey, the populace packed the arena shows.

* * *

No people interest me so much as circus folk. There is a tug in their forthright simplicity. Clyde Beatty, twice daily facing the furious slashes of a cage of mixed lions and tigers, proves to be an Ohio farm boy, fearful to enter an avenue haberdashery for a muffler he fancied in the window. Too, whirling Lillian Leitzel, whose tragic fall deprived the big-top of its acknowledged queen. Somewhere on my desk is a post-card sent shortly before her passing. She was at the Cirque d'Hiver in Paris and wrote: "Chestnut trees will soon be in beautiful white bloom." It impressed me with its naivete, because in the same mail came a scribble from an American vaudevillian: "Wowing them at the Casino de Paris. Eiffel Tower will blink my name yet."

Walking along East 17th street today, I recognized a block where a dead-and-gone beer hall once flourished. It featured a blackish brew with a fine-grained, bubbly head like shaving lather—an ebony fathom cuffed in cream. As I recall, it bore the name "Kulmbacher." Anyway, there was a depressing Saturday noon when a whistling copy boy plopped an official envelope before me. A curt note read: "Your services will not be needed after today." What galled most was the indefinable pity of my fellow copy readers. They knew. Newspaper shops, like the jungle, have a mysterious telegraphy. As I looked up none could meet my gaze. Anyway, I stepped into the rake-hell glamour of this beer hall to fortify myself for the ordeal of telling my wife. Downing two, I went home and lied, in a miraculous manner, that I had a better job. What is more, by Monday I did have. Ah, glorious Kulmbacher!

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

"I'm a young man," says he, "and I want to do what is right. But everything seems so muddled to me. Can you tell me what IS right and what IS wrong?"

No, I can't, son.

AND, AS A MATTER OF FACT, THAT WHICH WOULD BE RIGHT FOR ME WOULDN'T BE RIGHT FOR YOU. FOR THERE IS NO ABSOLUTE RIGHT . . . NO DEFINITE RULE FOR GOODNESS.

There are certain acts which, for our common convenience, we have declared to be wrong . . . such as murder, trickery, theft. Often even these acts may seem justified in individual cases. Yet, nevertheless, the human race has decided to put a closed season on them all. And sensible people no longer argue over their rightness or wrongness.

But these acts form but a very small part of human behavior. Only on rare occasions, if ever, will you be tempted to kill or steal or cheat.

BUT YOUR DAYS WILL BE FILLED WITH DECISIONS AND ACTS WHICH MAY BE WRONG OR MAY BE RIGHT—AND NO ONE CAN TELL YOU WHICH THEY ARE!

YOU ARE THE ONLY ONE ON EARTH THAT CAN TELL WHETHER THE THING YOU ARE DOING IS GOOD OR BAD.

There are millions of ways of being good—and millions of ways of being bad. And each man must decide for himself just which is HIS way.

Consider the number seven. Seven is a simple number. But many combinations may make seven.

Six and one make seven.
Two and four and one make seven.

Work it out for yourself. You'll be surprised to discover how many combinations of numbers will make seven.

AND, IN EXACTLY THE SAME WAY, THERE ARE MANY CHARACTER COMBINATIONS WHICH WILL MAKE "RIGHT."

SO YOU MUST LEARN YOUR OWN COMBINATION, SON. You must learn what's right for YOU!

You can't be right by copying MY way—nor by copying yours. You must learn the formula that fits your own vision and your own disposition.

You must KNOW YOURSELF. If you can once KNOW YOURSELF, and USE YOURSELF TRULY AND COURAGEOUSLY, life will be a shining adventure. You may be poor and obscure—you may suffer much hardship and pain—but if you are living honestly, according to the law of your own nature, everything you do will carry its own reward of pride and power and peace.

On the other hand, if you refuse to KNOW YOURSELF . . . if you insist on COPYING OTHER PEOPLE . . . SHAPING YOUR CONDUCT TO SUIT THE NOTIONS OF OTHER PEOPLE . . . then life will always be a shabby, unsatisfactory compromise. You may be rich and popular and famous—but in your own heart you will know you are a fake. And nothing that you do will ever give satisfaction or content.

LEARN AND FOLLOW THE LAW OF YOUR OWN NATURE.

LEARN AND RESPECT THE LAW OF THE OTHER FELLOW'S NATURE.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

Sometimes fathers and husbands have to become quite hard-boiled in order not to be imposed upon by members of the their family.

But if the sums keep mounting and mild protests are not heeded, then forcible remonstrance comes and probably a family quarrel.

When father has stated his limit it is not kind to overstep that limit.

This fact is so well-known that there should be no contentions among those who have personal consideration, each for the other members.

Of course, if father is extravagant, it seems to the others that they might spend more freely, but if father is consistent in living up to what he asks of others, generally the members of his family will try to please him.

Text For Today

The Lord rewarded me according to my righteousness; according to the cleanness of my hands hath he recompensed me.—Psalms, xviii:20.

An Unconventional Study of Matt Quay

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

I personally know the national chairmen of both leading political parties in this campaign, and both are excellent men and good politicians. I knew Everett Sanders, the Republican chairman, years ago, when, just out of college, he was a clerk in the office of a prominent Democratic lawyer and leader in Terre Haute. He is both able and genial. Mr. Farley has demonstrated his managerial capacity in the pre-convention fight for Roosevelt, and everyone takes his geniality for granted.

Perhaps the most brilliant national chairmen in generations were Senator Matt Quay, of Pennsylvania, in 1888, and Mark Hanna in 1896; and, of the two, Quay was the most resourceful and the most cunning. For he had to rely more on his wits and less on an unlimited exchequer than Hanna.

Recently I have had occasion to make a study of Quay, and it was a revelation. Most of us who remember anything about him at all think of him as a tricky, unscrupulous, if not dishonest, politician of limited mentality and no intellectual tastes or habits.

That is where tradition does him an injustice.

* * *

Not 'High-Minded' Politician

Matt Quay was educated in that dubious school of politics of which the Camerons were headmasters. He had belonged to the Cameron dynasty which was broken with the death of Penrose. He had no high ideals of politics or public service. His attitude toward people having such ideals was one of synicism. When anyone became interested in reforms he wondered what the reformer was hoping to "get out of it." No one, or very few, ever thought of him as a high-minded man. Most people thought he was intellectually a low type.

And he had a brilliant mind!

* * *

Ambitious to Write Biography

I have never been able to learn how he developed his passion for Pericles and the Greece of his day. But he was a master of that subject. For years he had an ambition to write a biography of the great Greek ruler. It would have been an exhaustive and, no doubt, a brilliant book, for he had left no avenue of information unexplored, and naturally he had a gift for phrase. He was known to have left a crowd of important politicians cooling their heels in the waiting room of his office while he finished an animated conversation with some professor who had made a study of Periclean days.

The late Senator Beveridge, who engaged him in one of the most brilliant parliamentarian battles of his life, thought him one of the very few men he had known to whom the word "genius" could really be applied.

* * *

Little Inclined to Public Speaking

While he had a gift for phrase, he was not given to oratory. When necessity called, he could, and did, speak fluently, wisely and in chaste English, with little flashes of brilliance in phrasing, but he was more interested in the Senate in mobilizing the votes than in tickling the ears of the galleries. But, in a pinch, his gift for the right word or phrase stood him in good stead.

Thus: once upon a time he took a position in the Senate that aroused the wrath of businessmen and bankers and manufacturers—usually the backbone of his strength. The first he learned of their resentment was when he alighted from a train in Philadelphia to be met by reporters with the announcement that these big men of the business and financial world had publicly and formally condemned him. Asked what he had to say, he flashed this sentence upon them:

It was a telling phrase; a quick inspirational decision; and had a far more intimidating effect on his critics than their criticism had on him. He was not often with "the man in the blouse," but he could shift as quickly as the others.

* * *

Broke Political Insurrections

On another occasion, when a reform wave swept over Pennsylvania and there was insurrection in the ranks and Quay seemed momentarily in danger, he sent a message over the wires from the heart of the section in revolt:

At the same time he broke the back of insurrection in a community peopled by a very large Scotch population. The feeling against him there was bitter. He dared to face the music. He went to the enemies' country to face his enemies from the platform.

And a little man, of small stature and frame, began in the Scotch dialect—for he was Scotch—associating himself with his foes in blood—began very softly like a father a little hurt by family dissensions. He won them over.

* * *

A Small Man, Quiet And Forceful

He did not look the boss of tradition, for he was very short and not heavy. There was nothing of the Cossack with a whip about him. He was more Tallyrand or Fouche than Napoleon. But he had a "cockeye" which gave him a rather sinister appearance to anyone looking for the devil's horns in a political boss.

He was a master of the subterranean wan to results. Soft-spoken and subtle, he accomplished more by whispering than most bosses have by shouting. And he fought with a smile, with exquisite courtesy in the Senate, though ever and anon his claws struck out and his enemies were clawed.

* * *

Failed to Achieve His Real Ambition

It is not generally suspected that Matt Quay ever regretted the course he had pursued in life. But in the twilight of his days he knew that he had not made for himself the place in history and in the appreciation of the people that he might, with his great talents. During his last days a young Senator who had fought him, but had some affection and much admiration for him, called upon him for the last time. The frail old man was seated by the window, whimsical, still a bit cynical, but clear eyed, facing the realities.

"One day," he said, "the papers will carry the headline—'Matt Quay, Boss, is dead.' If I had followed a different course they would say 'Matthew Stanley Quay, Statesman, passes.' Profit by my example."

Thus a stern realist and a cynic, who might have won for himself a place in literature and in history as a useful public servant, he passed into the shadows—smiling a bit whimsically.
